YOUR UNIVERSITY

By every educational yardstick, the University of Illinois is one of the great universities of the world. As a student in the University of Illinois, you become heir to a proud tradition and share in its high vision for the future.

From its earliest days, the University has led in education, in research, in public service, and in student life and welfare.

Today, it enjoys an eminence shared by only a few educational institutions. Its distinguished faculty, dynamic administration, excellent facilities, and concern for the individual student make it brim with educational opportunity and adventure for the able and industrious student.

TRANSFER STUDENTS

Although the college experience is not new to transfer students, the University wants to extend a special welcome to new Illini who come from other colleges and universities. A transfer student has much to contribute to his new campus environment—new ideas, different experiences, and—hopefully—objectivity. You can add much to campus life if you involve yourselves in the goals and activities of the University and share your ideas and experiences with your fellow students.

A transfer student frequently has questions or needs that are not shared by new freshmen. You will be wise to become familiar with the contents of this booklet and of the "Guide for New Students." Then, attend any Orientation Week activities which interest you. The Illini Guide in your housing group also can answer many of your questions. Your college office staff and the staffs of the Dean of Men and Dean of Women will be happy to assist you at any time.

READ AND LEARN

This booklet is intended to help you become familiar with the facts, procedures, and information you will need during your stay at the University of Illinois. It will guide you through the rules and regulations of student life; serve as a key to campus activities; and tell about the traditions and customs of the University community.

It is hoped that the use of this handbook will help new students make a successful adjustment to the campus; and will provide a useful source of information for other, more experienced students.

The staffs of the Dean of Men and Dean of Women, assisted by others of the staff of the Dean of Students' Office, assembled background material for the booklet. The historical note included in the handbook was abridged from a study by Dr. Fred H. Turner, Dean of Students.

INTRODUCING . . .

. . . The President

Dr. David Dodds Henry has been president of the University of Illinois since 1956. A graduate of the Pennsylvania State University, he previously served as President of Wayne State University, and as Vice Chancellor of New York University. He is recognized as an outstanding authority in higher education. His concern for scholarship is an important factor in the continuing reputation for academic excellence enjoyed by the University of Illinois.

. . . The Dean of Students

Dr. Fred H. Turner, Dean of Students since 1942, has a long record of service to the University of Illinois, his alma mater. Before taking his present position, he was Assistant Dean of Men and, later, Dean of Men. His interest and concern for University of Illinois students have helped to make this University one of the finest in the nation.

HISTORICALLY SPEAKING

The University of Illinois is the Land-Grant institution of the state of Illinois. Its main campus is at Urbana-Champaign, and its professional colleges of Medicine, Dentistry, Pharmacy, and Nursing are in the west side Medical Center in Chicago. A two-year Undergraduate Division presently is situated on Navy Pier, Chicago, with plans to move to a new site on the southwest side of the Loop in the near future.

The University was incorporated as the Illinois Industrial University by Act of the General Assembly of Illinois, February 28, 1867, under terms of the Land-Grant Act of 1862, which were accepted by the State of Illinois on February 14, 1863. In this year of the Centennial of the Land-Grant Act of 1862, it is noteworthy that this Act, which has had such far-reaching effects on higher education in the United States, had its origin in the early work of a group of Illinois farmers headed by Jonathan Baldwin Turner, a citizen of Jacksonville.

The Land-Grant Act of 1862 bears unmistakable resemblance to the wording of "Illinois memorials" on the subject by Turner, his friends, and the Illinois legislature, and the work which started among the farmers in Illinois was climaxed by the signing of the Act by an Illinois President, Abraham Lincoln, on July 1, 1862.

The Land-Grant Act provided for "the endowment, support and maintenance of at least one college, where the leading object shall be, without excluding other scientific and classical studies, and including military tactics, to teach such branches of learning as are related to agriculture and the mechanic arts."

The original state law placed the University under the control of a 31-member Board of Trustees. Since 1887, the Board has consisted of the Governor, the State Superintendent of Public Instruction, and nine members chosen in general state elections.

The first duty of the original Board of Trustees was the appointment of a Regent, or President. John Milton Gregory, of Kalamazoo, Michigan, was chosen for the post, and plans to open the University began at once.

Champaign County had included in an offer for the location a five-story building which was situated on the site of the present varsity baseball diamond at Wright Street and University Avenue. In this building, with a faculty of three members, the Illinois Industrial University opened its doors to 58 students on March 2, 1868.

The students, all men, lived, studied, and attended classes in the one University building. The military nature of the new institution was demonstrated by the fact that an official military uniform was worn by all students.

A student government was established in 1868, women were admitted to the University in 1870. A newspaper, "The Student," was started in 1871, to become "The Illini" in 1873. In October, 1871, the cadet corp of the Industrial University, led by Captain Edward Snyder, was taken to Chicago; its members were the first armed guards to arrive in the city at the time of the great Chicago fire. This public service somehow found great favor with the people of the state, and friendship for the new institution grew rapidly. Captain Snyder, professor of German, eventually left his entire estate to form the first student loan fund at the University.

A brief history of the University can be written around the administration of each Regent, or President, as they were later to be known.

Regent Gregory, serving from the opening of the University until 1880, planned the opening, the addition of needed buildings, the establishment of a library, and a museum of art, and the development of a course of study which combined classical courses with new and practical work in agriculture and the mechanic arts.

Subsequent regents or presidents were:

—Selim Hobart Peabody (in office 1880-1891), an engineer who won first legislative appropriations for University faculty salaries and saw (in 1885) the name of the institution changed to "the University of Illinois."

—Thomas Johnathan Burrill (acting Regent, 1891-1894), a scientist who brought renewed breadth of vision to the University, and shifted courses of studies back to a modernized classical emphasis. The Broadwalk, properly called Burrill Avenue, was named for him.

—Andrew Sloan Draper (in office 1894-1904), considered by many to be greatest of the early presidents of the University, organized business practices, presided over acquisition of the professional colleges, and saw the institution become a true University. Greatest of his abilities was that of adding to the faculty and staff young men who later became national leaders in higher education.

—Edmund Janes James (serving 1904-1920), built on the foundations laid by Draper. Through scholarly leadership, he realized his ambition of making a good University into a great University.

—David Kinley (acting President, 1920-1921; President, 1920-1930), an economist, presided over a period of sound financial advancement, of constructing badly-needed buildings, and of attaining adequate operating appropriations which enabled the University to maintain and progress in its high academic position.

—Harry Woodburn Chase (in office 1930-1933), a distinguished scholar, quickly put into motion an institutional study which resulted in decentralization of administrative processes. His term included the worst years of the financial depression of the early thirties, making it a difficult time for individual students, for the University, and for the state. However, procedures put into effect then still are in existence.

—Arthur Cutts Willard, one of the distinguished men who came to the University in the James' administration, had been head of the mechanical engineering, then Dean of the College of Engineering, before becoming President in 1934 (he served until 1946). A world-famous engineer, President Willard demonstrated wise vision and led development of the University in many areas, despite rapid growth following the depression, the departure of the mass of men students for military service, and the flood of students returning after World War II.

—George Dinsmore Stoddard (serving 1946-1953) had a record of growth, new expansion, new programs, and great increase in both students and faculty. Temporary branches of the University were set up to accommodate returning veterans at Galesburg and at Navy Pier in Chicago (the latter eventually became the Chicago Undergraduate Division); enrollments soared—limited only by lack of housing, lack of classrooms, and lack of teachers. Through Dr. Stoddard's realistic presentations of the University's needs, his resignation found the institution well on its way toward preparation for the floods of students who were soon to come.

—Lloyd Morey, formerly the University Comptroller, or chief financial officer (acting President, 1953; President, 1954-1955), brought his ability and national reputation as an expert on institutional fiscal matters to consolidation of the gains made under Dr. Stoddard, and toward further preparations for future great increases in enrollment.

The University is currently under the leadership of President David Dodds Henry, who assumed office in 1956. Dr. Henry has had to meet problems of expansion far beyond the dreams of earlier administrators. He has been able to transmit to faculty, staff, and students something of his wide vision for the institution and his high aspirations for its future. If the expression "moving forward on all fronts" could be applied appropriately to any President of the University, it would be most fitting for President Henry.

YOUR LIFE AT ILLINOIS

The major portion of your life at the University of Illinois will center around classes and study. This is basic; it is why you came to college. But there are other opportunities, outside the classroom and study areas, that can contribute to your total education if you use them wisely. Campus activities can be valuable in helping you make friends and follow hobbies, cultural interests, and vocational pursuits. Your social and recreational life is important, too. In addition to its "fun" side, it helps you learn to get along with people on an adult basis, and to gain ease in the niceties that are a mark of an educated person. Healthful recreation keeps you physically and mentally at your best.

Life in your housing group may be closely related to all three of the above, since it touches on your academic life, your activities interests, and your social life. In this housing group you live, study, and play. You can benefit by learning to work and get along with others.

The University of Illinois, as a state institution, does not, of course, have any religious affiliations. However, religious interest among students is great. The first church expressly for college students was established near the campus at Illinois in 1906, and today there are 15 religious foundations giving special attention to students.

All these aspects of your life as a student at the University of Illinois are discussed in following pages.

ACADEMICALLY SPEAKING

Your academic life at the University of Illinois will be centered in the college in which you are enrolled.

The University is made up of 19 colleges and schools. Those at Urbana that are open to beginning freshmen are the Colleges of Agriculture, Commerce and Business Administration, Education (elementary education curriculum), Engineering, Fine and Applied Arts (including School of Music), Liberal Arts and Sciences, and College of Physical Education. Advanced undergraduates at Urbana may enter the other programs in the College of Education, as well as the College of Journalism and Communications, College of Law, and College of Veterinary Medicine. College offices are listed on Page 54.

In your college office you will find deans and faculty advisers who can help you with your academic problems. It is your responsibility to be fully informed about the requirements of your college, since these vary from one to another. You can look up these requirements and check other academic information in the Undergraduate Study Bulletin. Make sure you get the latest edition, as changes sometimes are made that might affect your program of studies. Copies are available at the Information Office, Illini Union. Questions can be asked of your college adviser or members of the staff of your college dean.

Some of the things you should inquire about at your college office are:

—Advice on selection of courses.

—Information about grades.

—Change of class schedule.

—Change of college within the University (as, for example, you might want to transfer from the College of Agriculture to the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences, or vice versa).

—Withdrawal from the University.

STUDY HABITS

Higher education is a personal and sometimes lonely task. Since you, as a student, stand to gain all—or lose all—you will want to set your sights high, and to learn all you can from the experiences of others.

There are many sources of information about study techniques at the University of Illinois. For example, you may learn a great deal from successful fellow students, from house officers, from housing group counselors, from the faculty and the college dean's staff, and from staff members in the offices of the Dean of Men and Dean of Women. Specialists on study techniques are available to all students at the Student Counseling Service, 311 Administration (E), described more fully on Page 21.

BUDGETING TIME

An awareness of time and the careful use of it are signs of a wise person. This idea may be unfamiliar to new students—and even to some more experienced ones. Try to cultivate a sense of time and budget it sensibly. This can be a major asset—without it, you may be lost.

Start with the idea that you have enough time to do what you want and need to do, then proceed to organize your time. With a well-organized approach to everyday living, you will gain the self-confidence needed to meet the challenges you face. By scheduling your daily activities according to a "time budget," you can balance your interests and activities to your own best benefit.

Basically, you must allow time for:

—Seven to eight hours of uninterrupted sleep to enable you to carry on during the other 16-17 hours of your day.

—Three nutritious meals a day, eaten leisurely.

—Personal grooming.

—Attending classes.

—Studying.

—Academic, social, and recreational activities.

—Work, if you need to help earn your way through college.

Look over these basic requirements; you now are ready to budget your time. Each of you will find your own formula; no two students are likely to agree on the exact number of minutes and hours needed for any one of these activities.

CLASS AND STUDY SCHEDULE

Whether or not you will succeed in college depends on how well you make use of your abilities. Closely tied to this is the importance of a well-planned and well-organized class and study schedule.

Your class schedule, of course, is fixed. Your study schedule is more flexible, and, within it, routines may be changed and varied as long as you set aside enough time for thorough study and class preparation.

Here are some suggestions for setting up a study schedule:

1. Make up a schedule of your classes, blocking out time for meals and perhaps some late afternoon recreation.

2. Mark out blocks of time for study of specific courses. It is wise to distribute your study time throughout the day. It also is wise to study for a specific class as close as possible before and after the time of the class meeting.

3. Set aside evening hours, 7 p.m. to 11 p.m., as well as time periods on Saturdays and Sundays. Some time for study will be needed each weekend, especially if you want to attend concerts, plays, athletic events, or social affairs—any and all of which can use up large slices of your study time Monday through Friday.

4. Most authorities recommend that you allocate two hours of study time, outside of class, for each hour spent in class. These are minimums; many courses take more time than this, and a very few may take less.

STUDY ENVIRONMENT

You have a right to demand that your fellow students show consideration and respect for Quiet Hours in the housing groups. This will allow each of you to study effectively in your own rooms. You and your fellows must understand that some activities must be postponed, cancelled entirely, or moved to other places during Quiet Hours.

Hours each day have been designated by the University as minimum Quiet Hours. They are: Sunday through Friday 8:00 a.m. to 12 noon, and 1:00 p.m. to 4:00 p.m.; Sunday through Thursday 7:30 p.m. to 10:00 p.m. During these times and after 11:00 p.m. the house should be quiet enough so that any person wishing to do so may study or sleep. In many residences, the student governments have extended these hours to suit the needs of the individual house.

It is a good idea to study in the same place every day, and to keep your study materials there for easy accessibility.

Extra quiet areas are set aside for study in residence halls, and other housing facilities, University dining halls, and libraries, as well as the main library and various study and reading rooms around campus. Noisy activities, such as typing, practicing speeches, or conversation when two or more people are studying together, should be kept in rooms provided in the housing units—recreation rooms—and the like.

PERSONAL AND ACADEMIC INTEGRITY

Education is a personal and individual matter. No one can “educate” you; you must educate yourself. Thus, each student is responsible for developing his scholarship to the highest his native abilities will allow.

The true scholar is a person of honor; a sense of high integrity is necessary to the student as he goes through the process of higher education. Cheating and plagiarism are morally degrading and interfere with learning and intellectual development.

To cheat is to steal—to steal another’s ideas, to steal credit and grades that you have not earned. To help another student cheat is to help him steal, and debases both him and you.

The University of Illinois faculty makes every effort to inspire and encourage honesty in academic work. Moreover, faculty members have the responsibility of protecting the honest student and preventing dishonesty. Finally, if dishonesty does occur, the faculty is expected to take action to discipline the guilty student.

ACADEMIC GROUND RULES

As the University goes about its business of educating students, procedures and regulations have been developed to make the entire process fair and orderly. You are expected to know these “ground rules” and to follow the established procedures.

REGISTRATION

In order to get into classes, students must go through registration. Registration is held at the beginning of each semester and of the Summer Session. You must register for yourself; you cannot have it done by proxy. No undergraduate is admitted to classes if he has not registered properly.

PHYSICAL EXAMINATION

The University is concerned about the physical and mental well-being of its students, and needs full information of this sort about each of you. Therefore, all prospective new students must take physical examinations before they complete registration. Information is available at the Health Service.

RESIDENCE CLASSIFICATION

Each student must state his legal residence on his admissions application, and must keep the University informed if he changes legal residence. If your residence is not in Illinois, you will be charged nonresident fees. For information about your residence classification, go to the Office of the Dean of Admissions and Records, Window 17, Room 100-a Administration Building, or Room 109 Administration Building (E).

CLASS LOAD

Each student is required to pursue a full program of studies, according to the standards set by the college in which he is registered. If you wish to take more or less hours than a normal program, you must secure approval from the dean of your college.

LISTENERS AND VISITORS

A student wishing to register as a listener or a visitor to a class must first get permission from the instructor and the dean of the college concerned. Visitors to laboratories, or to military, physical education, or studio classes are not permitted. For more information, consult the Office of Admissions and Records, 100-a Administration Building.

CHANGE IN STUDY PROGRAMS

Once you have registered for the term, permission to change from one course to another in your study program may be obtained only from the dean of your college. When formal registration is over and classes have begun, you also must get the consent of the head of the department in which the course is offered. The department head may require you to pass an examination on the work that you have missed but that has been already covered by the new class, or to present satisfactory evidence of your ability to carry the work.

If your college office permits you to make a change in your study program, you should request a "Change of Program" blank, commonly known as a "change slip." This should be filled out and deposited at the Business Office (100-a Administration Building) within two days after it is issued. A fee of $1.00 is charged for each change slip issued. In cases of conflict or errors in registration your college office may decide that the fee should be waived.

You may not enter new classes after the beginning of a term—even if this does not involve a change in your program—except with the approval of the dean of your college.

If you are taking a course which has several sections meeting at various hours, and want to change from one section to another, you must get advance permission from the office of the department in which the course is included.

GRADES

At the end of the first eight weeks (mid-term) of each semester, a freshman's grades are reported by his college to the student himself, to his parents, and to the office of the Dean of Men or Dean of Women.

Grade points are given this way: A grade of "A" = 5 points, "B" = 4, "C" = 3, "D" = 2, "E" = 1 (failure). The grade of "ab" (failure) is computed as 1 point, and indicates lack of attendance. The grade "W" indicates withdrawal. Each course has an assigned number of credit hours. To work out your grade point average, multiply the point value of the grade you received in each course by the number of credit hours in that course. Add the answers from your multiplication and divide the sum by the total number of hours for which you were registered that semester.

For example:

Rhetoric 101	3 hours	B	3x4	12
Mathematics 117	5 hours	A	5x5	25
Spanish 101	4 hours	C	4x3	12
Botany 101	4 hours	B	4x4	16
<hr/>
16 hours			Grand Point Total	65

The total of 65 divided by 16 will equal a grade point average of 4.06 ("B"—plus).

POOR SCHOLARSHIP

As a student, your main concern should be satisfactory progress toward your college degree. If your work is unsatisfactory, the dean of your college will take action. You may be warned, you may be put on probation, or—if your work is very poor—you may be dropped from the college.

Each curriculum within the University has a specified minimum grade point average which all students enrolled in that course of study must maintain. If your grades fall below 3.0 ("C"), or the required grade average for your college (if this is higher than 3.0) you will be placed on probation for the following semester. If you fail to raise your average above the 3.0 or your college's grade requirement during the semester you are on probation, you will be dropped from school. Again, remember that certain curricula as well as certain colleges have special requirements; it is up to you to know your college and department standards.

To gain readmission a student must petition the dean of his college. Each case is considered individually, and the student may or may not be readmitted.

MINIMUM DEGREE REQUIREMENT

Generally speaking, to qualify for a bachelor's degree you must earn a minimum grade point average of 3.0 (straight "C"), including grades transferred from other institutions. Your average for courses taken at the University of Illinois also must top the 3.0 mark. Certain colleges require a higher minimum average.

All grades for courses required for graduation by your college and curricula are used when the graduation average is computed. Where a course has been repeated, both the original and the later grades are included in the average if the course is to be counted toward graduation, but the credit is counted only once.

YOUR CLASS IN COLLEGE

Your class in college—that is, whether you are a freshman, sophomore, junior, or senior—does not necessarily reflect the number of semesters you have spent at institutions of higher learning.

At the University of Illinois, the sorting of students into classes is done in the Recorder's Office at the end of each semester. Your class in school is determined by the number of credits you have earned (including physical education and military science). For registration purposes and for student activities, your class in school is gauged by one of the following scales, depending upon how many hours of credit are required for graduation from your college and curriculum:

	130 hours or less	More than 130 hours
Freshman standing	0-29 hours	0-29 hours
Sophomore standing	30 hours	30 hours
Junior standing	60 hours	62 hours
Senior standing	94 hours	99 hours

All students with 95 or more hours of credit, regardless of their courses of study, are classified as seniors, and will receive reduced credit if they elect certain freshman courses.

ABSENCES FROM CLASS

CLASS ATTENDANCE

Class attendance is considered a basic relationship between student and instructor. Despite popular rumor, there is no "cut system" at Illinois. Class attendance is expected, and specific regulations may be set by individual instructors. The instructor decides when a student's absences become excessive and should be reported.

A student must explain absences and present supporting evidence to instructors on request. An explanation of absences is not to be considered an "excuse," in as much as the evaluation of the explanation and of its supporting evidence is made by the instructor.

If, in the opinion of an instructor, the attendance of a student becomes so irregular that his scholarship is likely to be impaired, the instructor reports the case to the Dean of the student's college through the Dean of Men or the Dean of Women. Furthermore, when in the opinion of the instructor concerned, irregular attendance has so seriously impaired the work of the student as to make continuation unprofitable, the dean of the college concerned may require the student to withdraw from the course with a grade of "W" or "E."

EMERGENCY ABSENCES FROM CLASS

If a student must be away from campus because of illness at home, death in the family, or other emergency, the student should notify the office of the Dean of Men or Women. The college office will then be notified. A report of students admitted to McKinley Hospital and other local hospitals will be forwarded daily to the college deans' offices. A student must see the instructor of each class missed immediately upon his return concerning the work missed during such absences.

EXCUSED ABSENCES FROM FINAL EXAMINATIONS

Such excuses can be issued only by the student's college office. The grounds for such excuses must be documented by a notice from the Health Service or from a private physician, by a notice of hospitalization or by adequate data substantiating other emergencies.

DROPPING A COURSE

If you want to drop a course because you have fallen behind to a serious degree—either through lack of industry or ability—the dean of your college may require you to accept the grade of "E" for the course. The withdrawal is carried out through use of the regular change slip, signed by the course instructor and approved by the dean of the appropriate college. The dean writes upon the change slip, "Withdrawn, accepting the grade of 'E'." The Recorder then notifies your instructor, who returns the grade of "E" as the official grade for the course.

WITHDRAWAL FROM THE UNIVERSITY

A student who leaves the University during any term must officially withdraw. Otherwise, the courses he has been taking will go on his record as "ab" (absent, counting as failure).

Withdrawal procedure is as follows:

- (1) Get a clearance paper from the dean of your college.
- (2) Have the clearance paper signed by the various University officers indicated on it.
- (3) Return the clearance paper to the dean of your college for approval.
- (4) Deposit the clearance paper at the Recorder's Office.

The same procedures must be followed by a student who is about to graduate.

When it is evident that a student about to withdraw is failing any or all of his courses, the college dean may note on the clearance papers that failing grades are to be recorded. The college dean also may have the student placed on probation or dropped for poor scholarship at the date he withdraws. If such a student fails to file his clearance papers with the Recorder, the college dean may file them.

In some cases, even a student whose school work has not been poor may be required to petition and get approval from the dean of his college before he may register again. This ruling applies (1) when a student drops out of the University during the final three weeks of classes in any semester or the last two weeks in any Summer Session, and (2) when a student's status cannot be determined because of excused grades.

EXAMINATIONS

You have been taking examinations all through your school days. You will continue to take a variety of kinds of examinations throughout your years as an undergraduate at the University of Illinois.

Entrance examinations may be taken to gain admission to the University or to remove specific deficiencies for admission. These examinations also help both you and the University learn more about your gifts and abilities.

Freshman Guidance Examinations are taken by all entering freshmen. They also help both you and the University learn more about your gifts and abilities.

Proficiency examinations are offered in all University courses normally open to freshmen and sophomores. If you know the subject matter of a given course, a proficiency examination will allow you to gain credit for your knowledge without actually taking the course. You then can accelerate your education by registering for more advanced courses. Information about proficiency examinations can be obtained from the Office of the Dean of Admissions and Records, or from the office of the department concerned.

Semester or final examinations are held at the close of each semester. If you are going to have to miss a final examination, you must see the dean of your college before the examination takes place (see Page 12).

Special examinations are given only upon recommendation of the head of the department concerned or of his authorized representative, and with approval of the dean of the college. Questions about special examinations should be directed to the Office of the Dean of Admissions and Records.

CREDITS AND TRANSCRIPTS

All courses for which you register are noted on your permanent records in the Office of Admissions and Records. Duplicates of current records of their students are kept in the offices of the college deans. Your questions about credits and recording of grades can be taken to whichever office seems more appropriate. For example, if the question is about college requirement courses taught within the college, or college standards, go to the office of the dean of your college. For information about transfer credits, for a transcript of your credits, and for general information about registration or recording of personal data, go to the Office of the Dean of Admissions and Records.

UNIVERSITY REQUIREMENTS

ADDRESSES

Regulations state that every undergraduate student must maintain his correct, current addresses—both at home and on campus—on file in the office of Admissions and Records.

Although this is a requirement, it also is a service to you, since it enables you to receive all official communications, to be located by friends visiting the campus, and to be reached in case of emergency.

ENGLISH LANGUAGE PROFICIENCY

The University requires all undergraduates to be able to write good English. Students who pass Rhetoric 102 with a grade of "C" or "D" must pass an English qualifying examination before they are permitted to graduate. This examination may not be taken until one full semester after the student has completed Rhetoric 102.

A student who must take the qualifying examination, but who has not done so during his sophomore or junior years, will not be permitted to register for his senior year except with special authorization of the Provost.

A transfer student with 80 or more credit hours, including freshman rhetoric, and with a grade of "C" or "D" in the last rhetoric course taken, must take a qualifying examination on the first day of his first semester at the University.

Failure to pass the English qualifying examination means the student must register for Rhetoric 200. If he fails this course, he must repeat either the course or the qualifying examination. At least one term must pass after the failure before the qualifying examination can be repeated.

The English qualifying examination is so important that it takes precedence over all other course work and campus events scheduled on the nights it is offered. Students who neglect to take the examination, unless officially excused, are enrolled in Rhetoric 200.

PHYSICAL EDUCATION

Freshman and other students with less than 60 academic hours of credit are required to earn four semesters credit in physical education.

If you are found by the University Health Service to be unable to take physical education, you may be deferred or exempted.

In unusual cases, if your schedule of required study or necessary personal obligations make a critical problem, the dean of your college may approve your deferment or exemption from physical education requirements.

MILITARY TRAINING

All able-bodied male students must register for and attend classes in military training. Women also may enroll in certain military programs, but this is not required.

The first two years of military training normally must be satisfactorily completed within your first two years in the University.

Exemptions from military training requirements may be granted to the following:

(a) Students who are 22 or older when first entering the University at Urbana-Champaign.

(b) Transfer students who, when first entering the University at Urbana-Champaign, have 60 or more semester hours of credit.

(c) Students who are not citizens of the United States.

(d) Students who have satisfactory credit for two years of military training in other senior units of the Reserve Officer Training Corps (R.O.T.C.).

(e) Students holding commissions in the Officers' Reserve Corps, United States Army, Air Force, Navy, or Marine Corps, or certificates of eligibility for such commissions.

(f) Veterans who, while in active military service, have completed basic or recruit training of six months or more.

(g) Students enrolled in the Navy Reserve Officer Training Corps (N.R.O.T.C.) or Air Force Reserve Officer Training Corps (A.F.R.O.T.C.) at the University.

(h) Students who prove successful completion of three years of training in accredited junior R.O.T.C. units in high or preparatory school, and who register for the Army R.O.T.C. at the University are required to take only one year's additional training. Such students must submit petitions to the Dean of Students to obtain exemption. This exemption does not apply to the Air Force or Navy R.O.T.C.

(i) Students who are members of the National Guard and who are attending weekly drill meetings. (Students must submit petitions to the Dean of Students each semester for this type of exemption.)

(j) Students who are accepted for membership in certain other active and reserve military units may be considered for exemption on petition to the Dean of Students.

(k) Students exempted on the basis of conscientious objections. In this case the student petitions the Office of the Dean of Students to be exempted from R.O.T.C. In all cases where a petitioner is excused from compulsory military training on the grounds of conscience, he is required to enroll in and pass five semester hours of special prescribed academic courses in lieu of military training.

(1) In order that athletes may comply with the general University requirement on military training, and also, if they wish, may be eligible to carry advanced work in the Reserve Officers' Training Corps, the following rules govern:

Members of varsity teams are excused from basic military training periods when absences are due to actual conflicts with practice sessions, out-of-town trips, or home games of the teams to which they belong, and are not required to make up such absences. Such absences are reported to the Commandant by the Secretary of the Committee on Student Affairs.

All varsity athletes taking basic military training normally register for sections which do not interfere with regular practice hours for the sport concerned, and which do not meet on days normally used for games with other universities. When a conflict arises, the case is decided by the Dean of Students after he considers recommendations from heads of the departments concerned.

A student seeking to be excused from military training for any reason not mentioned above, or one wishing to have his military training deferred, must first register for military and then submit a petition through the Headquarters of the Department of Military Science, Naval Science, or Air Force Science to the Dean of Students. Petitions are granted only for exceptional reasons.

LIBRARY FACILITIES

The University of Illinois Library is the largest state university library in the nation, and is third largest among all American university libraries.

The general library and the 32 departmental libraries contain over 4,000,000 volumes, plus large numbers of pamphlets, music scores, maps, sound recordings, and other library materials.

The University is famous for some of its special collections which, when added to the standard book collections, make the University of Illinois Library not only a good library, but a great one.

You may become confused by such things as the number of departmental libraries, the locations of books or periodicals, or how to use these extensive facilities. "Your Library," a booklet prepared by the library staff to answer most of these and other questions about the Library, is available in the Undergraduate Library and at the reference desk in the General Library Building. You will also save time by learning to consult the staff of the Library's Information Desk, located in the second floor foyer near the card catalog.

A large percentage of the books needed by freshmen and sophomores are kept in the Undergraduate Library, first floor, General Library Building.

Reference books and periodicals are in the General Reading and Reference Room on the second floor. The highly informed reference staff is there to help you. The Library also includes 32 departmental libraries, which are listed, with their locations, on Page 55.

Residence Hall library facilities are being developed. The University Library already is operating one such library in Lincoln Avenue Residence, where the University Library has provided about 1,000 basic reference books. Student assistants are employed from 7:30 to 11:30 p.m., Sunday through Friday, when the LAR library is open to residents.

A larger undergraduate reference library is planned for a basement location in the Peabody Drive Residence Halls. This library will be available to all students in the area during most daytime and evening hours.

LIBRARY REGULATIONS

The Library's main purpose is to circulate books to the students and faculty of the University. However, students are expected to know and obey Library regulations.

IDENTIFICATION

The identification (I.D.) card that you received when you registered must be shown each time library materials are checked out. If you do not have your I.D. card with you, the Library may refuse to lend you the materials you need.

LOAN PERIODS

You are personally responsible for the safety, proper use, and return of all library materials charged in your name. Most books may be checked out for three weeks, and, unless they are in special demand, can be renewed for another three weeks by applying in person (books will not be renewed by telephone). You may borrow as many books at once as you need, except when the same materials are needed by other students or faculty.

ACCESS TO STACKS AND SPECIAL MATERIALS

To prevent confusion and possible loss of or damage to valuable books, most undergraduates do not have access to the Library stacks. However, seniors and honor students may apply for stack permits. Periodicals, rare materials, and government documents may be used only in the Library Building.

RESERVE BOOKS

Reserve books are those set aside by an instructor for use of his students in preparation for a special assignment or project. Usually, there are only a few copies of each book, and these must be shared within a short space of time by all members of the class.

Accordingly, reserve books are to be used during the day in the room where they have been set aside. You may borrow them for overnight use, but must return them by 9 a.m. the following day. Reserve books borrowed on Saturday for use over the weekend are due back by 9 a.m. Monday.

FINES

If you do not return a book borrowed for the usual three-week period by the end of that time, and have not renewed it in person, you will be subject to a fine of 15 cents a day. If the book you do not return is a reserve book, your fine will be 25 cents for the first hour, and five cents for each additional hour it is overdue.

The Library will attempt to phone or notify you in writing when a book is overdue. This notification is a voluntary service by the Library, and is not something that is yours by right. Failure to receive a notice from the Library is not a reason for cancellation of your fine.

University transcripts will be withheld and you may not register for a succeeding semester until your Library accounts are cleared.

LOST BOOKS

A lost book should be reported immediately to the desk from which it was borrowed. You will be charged a fine on any book that is overdue until you personally report it lost. If you do not find the book after a reasonable length of time, you will have to pay the Library (a) the cost of the book and (b) a service charge.

MUTILATED BOOKS

Theft and mutilation of library materials, as well as forgery of signatures and I. D. numbers, are punishable under the laws of the State of Illinois, and also make you subject to University disciplinary action.

LIBRARY HOURS

During the Academic Year:

General Library Building

Monday-Thursday: 7:50 a.m.-10:00 p.m.

Friday: 7:50 a.m.-5:00 p.m. and 7:00-10:00 p.m.*

Saturday: 7:50 a.m.-5:00 p.m. and 7:00-10:00 p.m.*

Sunday: 2:00-5:00 p.m. and 7:00-11:00 p.m.*

*Limited service

Departmental Libraries

Hours vary, but in general

Monday-Thursday: 7:50 a.m.-5:00 p.m. and 7:00-10:00 p.m.

Friday and Saturday: 7:50 a.m.-5:00 p.m.

Sunday: Closed

Exact hours are posted in each library.

During the Summer Semester: Same as above, except closed Saturday night and Sunday.

Holidays and Vacations: All campus libraries are closed on certain holidays. During the academic vacations General Library Building hours are usually 8:00 a.m.-5:00 p.m., except 8:00 a.m.-12:00 noon, Saturday. Departmental libraries generally have shorter schedules. Hours are posted in advance in each library.

HONORS

The honors graduate is the University's proudest product. Each college sets down conditions under which candidates for degrees may be graduated with honors. Such distinction, if you gain it, will be noted on your diploma and in the Commencement program.

Undergraduates who make high grades are recognized each spring at the annual Honors Day convocation. Outstanding honor students may win the right to wear the University's Scholarship Keys and to have their names placed on the Bronze Tablet.

Numerous prizes and awards are available to honors students in the various curricula (see the Undergraduate Study Bulletin for a listing). Honors students who apply for scholarships or grants get preferred treatment. When they graduate, they are likely to get top professional jobs and scholarships and fellowships for advanced study.

HONOR SOCIETIES

Honor societies are those that recognize high academic achievement. Activities and professional honoraries (see Page 18) also usually demand respectable grade averages of those seeking membership.

If you are freshman, your first goal should be to try to qualify for membership in Alpha Lambda Delta (for women) or Phi Eta Sigma (for men). These two national honoraries, both founded at the University of Illinois, require a 4.5 average earned during the first semester or freshman year.

As you progress through the University, you will find membership in honoraries becoming available to superior students who are juniors and seniors.

Phi Beta Kappa, oldest of the national honoraries, is for outstanding students in the College of Liberal Arts and Sciences; Phi Kappa Phi is an all-University national honorary that cuts across college and departmental lines.

Other academic honoraries for students in specific courses of study are as follows:

Alpha Sigma Mu, metallurgical engineering; Alpha Zeta, agriculture; Beta Alpha Psi, accountancy; Beta Gamma Sigma, commerce; Chi Epsilon, civil engineering; Chi Gamma Iota, veterans; Delta Phi Alpha, German; Delta Theta Epsilon, physical education; Eta Kappa Nu, electrical engineering; Gamma Sigma Delta, agriculture; Gargoyle, architecture; Iota Sigma Pi, women in chemistry; Kappa Delta Pi, education; Kappa Tau Alpha, journalism.

Keramos, ceramic engineering; Phi Mu Epsilon, music; Omega Beta Pi, pre-medicine; Omicron Nu, home economics; Phi Alpha Mu, fraternity men; Phi Alpha Theta, history; Phi Lambda Upsilon, chemistry; Phi Sigma, biology; Phi Upsilon Omicron, women in home economics; Pi Alpha Xi, floriculture; Pi Delta Phi, French; Pi Kappa Lambda, music; Pi Mu Epsilon, mathematics.

Pi Sigma Alpha, political science; Pi Tau Sigma, mechanical engineering; Psi Chi, psychology; Sigma Alpha Iota, women in music; Sigma Delta Pi, Spanish; Sigma Gamma Tau, management; Sigma Tau, engineering; Society of Illustrators, art and design; Tau Beta Pi, engineering.

Seniors of exceptional talent and outstanding records sometimes are elected to associate membership in The Society of the Sigma Xi, distinguished national honorary for scientists.

EDMUND J. JAMES SCHOLARS

Special education opportunities called honors programs are available to all able, ambitious, and industrious students at the University. Outward symbol of the all-University program is the Edmund J. James Scholar, named after one of the University's distinguished early presidents.

James Scholars are given a variety of opportunities and special academic privileges. Those of you in this selective group may, as freshmen and sophomores, take special honors courses. Each of you will have a faculty honors adviser, chosen for his interest in and awareness of the intellectual needs of superior students. He will guide you toward advanced study in your chosen fields.

As a James Scholar, you may pre-register, and may obtain a permit that gives you access to the library stacks. In many cases, you will be allowed to vary your course of study and take classes of interest to you that are within the strict limits of your curriculum.

James Scholars usually enroll in the special honors programs of their colleges. During their junior and senior years, they may undertake independent study toward academic distinction in their major departments. James Scholars have a strong competitive advantage when they apply for admission to graduate and professional schools and when they compete for fellowships such as the Woodrow Wilson, Fulbright, and other graduate awards.

Most James Scholars receive their appointments while they are still seniors in high school. However, any freshman or sophomore who shows unusual scholarship may apply for admission to the program. High school juniors and seniors interested in applying for admission as James Scholars should follow specific procedures; to learn about these, they—as well as freshmen or sophomores on campus who are interested in the program—should consult:

Director of University Honors Program
University of Illinois
1205 W. Oregon Street
Urbana, Illinois

STUDENT SERVICES

Your welfare—both in class and out—is a basic concern of the faculty and staff of the University. Although you are expected to be a responsible adult and act like one while you are at the University, even a responsible adult often finds himself in need of advice or assistance of one kind or another.

Counseling, housing, health services, aid with registration and admissions, orientation, help in academic, extra-curricular, social, and financial matters, as well as clinical assistance for those with special problems, are included among the services of the University.

THE DEAN OF STUDENTS

The Dean of Students is the administrative officer responsible for supervision of all out-of-class activities of undergraduate students. He is expected to see that University policies regarding student life are put into effect. In addition, he reflects the needs and interests of the student body back to other portions of the faculty and administration. In these matters, he is advised by the University Senate Committee on Student Affairs (CSA).

In carrying out his supervision of student life, the Dean of Students has these officers and agencies reporting to him:

The Deans of Men and Women

The Director of Auxiliary Services

The Director of Housing

The Director of the Illini Union

The Supervisor of Insurance

The University Security Officer

The Director of the Office of Foreign Student Affairs

The Director of Student Employment

The University Coordinating Placement Officer

All Boards administering extra-curricular activities of undergraduate students.

The Dean of Students takes part in the granting of student loans and undergraduate scholarships. His staff also is in charge of arrangements for New Student Week and University Orientation, and advises students appealing decisions of the Senate Subcommittee on Student Discipline.

The Dean of Men and his staff, a student personnel service, located in 157 Administration (W), have responsibility for general advising and counseling of all undergraduate men. Whenever it is advisable, staff members of this office will refer you to such other campus agencies as your academic dean, the Student Counseling Service, or the like.

Men students seeking University loans (short-term, long-term, or emergency), should go to the Dean of Men's Office. Students also may wish to discuss questions about extra-curricular activities, problems of a general nature, or financial problems.

The Dean of Men's Office is the general information center for all prospective male students and their parents, and for all undergraduate men. The staff is listed on Page 53.

The Dean of Women and her staff, a student personnel service, located in 100 English Building, have responsibility for the general welfare and out-of-class life of undergraduate women.

The staff members counsel individual students on general problems; make referrals to other agencies, offices and facilities; offer advice on financial matters (including budgeting and all types of loans). They advise campus organizations; train staff members and counselors for women's housing groups; correlate class absence reports and explanations of absence; issue special housing or work permissions; make assignments of room space in Women's Residence Halls; coordinate the sorority rush program; and register and assist in planning social events for all organized houses and student organizations.

ORIENTATION

The University Orientation Program is intended to help you become familiar with the campus community and feel at home in your life as a college student. Through the Orientation Program, you are introduced to academic life, your individual living unit, and the University community as a whole, including activities, regulations, and student services.

ILLINI GUIDES

Illini Guides are especially selected and trained upperclass students who are representatives of the Orientation Program in each of the housing units. They are chosen on the basis of maturity, academic achievement, standing as upper-classmen, and interest in working with new students.

Illini Guides are trained by the staff of the Dean of Students and by student representatives of the five housing groups. They attend two workshops—spring and fall; study the "Illini Guide Handbook" and other selected materials, and attend group meetings throughout the year.

ORIENTATION ACTIVITIES

Many of the major orientation activities carried on by the University are held in advance of and during New Student Week. Others, carried on after the term has started, include organization of an effective study schedule; conferences with faculty advisers, members of the Dean of Men's or Dean of Women's staffs, and possibly with the Counseling Service Staff; mid-semester evaluation of academic progress; and a weekly orientation program on television.

The Orientation Television Series provides a standard orientation program for all housing units. Weekly 30-minute segments take up such topics as study skills, use of the Library, student values, organization of the University, and job opportunities. Many housing units will follow the TV presentation with student-faculty discussion sessions.

HELP WITH YOUR STUDIES

Your instructor is the first person to see when you are having trouble with one of your courses. After him, you may want to seek help from one of the following: the dean of your college, or member of his staff; the professional advisers at the Student Counseling Service; a counselor, resident, or other adviser in your housing group; the student scholarship chairman of your housing group (he may be able to arrange tutoring or other assistance); the specialists in the University clinics discussed on Page 22.

When your trouble with your studies is general—that is, when you are having difficulties with several or all of your courses—consult the staff of the dean of your college and the Student Counseling Bureau.

Be sure to ask for help at the first sign of trouble. Do not wait until you are so far behind that it is impossible to catch up, or to raise your grades to an acceptable level. Mid-semester is a good time to assess your progress and to take steps to bring up your grades when they are low. However, if you are in serious difficulty, you should suspect it before then, and should seek assistance.

A good way to avoid trouble in most courses is to attend every class session every day, and to prepare every assignment thoroughly and on time.

THE STUDENT COUNSELING SERVICE

The Student Counseling Service offers professional services to help you overcome problems and difficulties which might interfere with your making full use of your abilities and educational opportunities.

Its services include psychological, vocational, and educational testing and counseling, counseling on academic and personal adjustment and marriage counseling. It offers group counseling for improvement of reading and study skills—a voluntary program in which about 800 students a year take part. The Counseling Service also administers some 10 testing programs for special University purposes and for other purposes of national or regional scope.

To make an appointment with a counselor, go to the office, 311 Administration (E), or telephone 7-6611 Ext. 2210 for an appointment.

HEALTH SERVICES

HEALTH CENTER

The University maintains a Health Center, staffed by 18 physicians, in Davenport House, 807 S. Wright St. In addition, seven visiting specialists provide consultation in ear, nose and throat, orthopedics, and diseases of the skin.

The Health Center is open 8 a.m.-5 p.m. weekdays and 8 a.m.-12 noon Saturdays. Nurses are on duty 24 hours a day at McKinley Hospital, and a physician is on call for emergencies from 5 p.m. each day until 8 a.m. the following day, and over weekends and holidays.

In cases where continued attention is required, the student may be referred to a personal physician.

Appointments at the Health Service can be made by calling 7-6611 Ext. 3789.

MENTAL HEALTH DIVISION

Three psychiatrists, a clinical psychologist, and two psychiatric social workers are available for consultation at the Health Center.

McKINLEY HOSPITAL

Both Health Service and community physicians care for patients at McKinley Hospital, which has capacity of 150 beds. There is an emergency room, where physicians and nurses may give medical attention when the Health Center is closed.

HEALTH INSURANCE

All students are required to carry hospital insurance, paid as part of your fees when you register. If you already have health insurance equal in benefits to that obtained through the University, and can present evidence to prove you do, you will be refunded the cost of the University policy. Refunds are available at the Insurance Office, 258 Administration (W).

UNIVERSITY CLINICS

The Reading Clinic, a unit of the Student Counseling Service, is located at 312 Administration Building. Special help is available in reading and study habits. Work may be done on an individual basis, or in non-credit classes arranged by the Student Counseling Service.

The Writing Clinic is located at 307 English Building. Freshmen with writing problems should get help directly from their rhetoric instructors. The Writing Clinic is primarily for upperclassmen. It is intended to give individual diagnosis of writing, spelling, organization, and punctuation problems. The clinic furnishes supervised review and brief instruction, and offers aid in the problems of organized reports or papers.

The Speech and Hearing Clinic, 601 East John St., is a center for diagnosis of speech and hearing problems and for therapy for students in need of help with articulatory, vocal rhythmical, aural, linguistic, or hearing difficulties. Help is available to any student; however, interested students are advised to seek help early in their college careers.

A student may seek help from any of these University clinics—as well as from the Student Counseling Service, Health Service, or other agencies—entirely on his own, or he may be referred to one of them by an instructor or other adviser.

HOUSING

At the University of Illinois, a student may choose among a number of types of housing.

All unmarried undergraduate students—both men and women—must live in housing in which facilities have been approved by the University. The only exceptions are in those unusual cases where special permission to live somewhere else has been given the student by the Dean of Men or Dean of Women, plus the Housing Division, before registration.

Once you have signed a semester's housing contract, you are expected to live up to it. Women may not change housing during the semester without permission of the Dean of Women and the Housing Division.

Local students whose families live in or near Urbana-Champaign are, of course, permitted to live at home with their parents. However, out-of-town students who wish to live with relatives or work for room and board in other homes in Urbana-Champaign must get permission from the Dean of Men or Dean of Women.

Student housing includes University residence halls, fraternities and sororities, cooperative houses, and approved privately owned halls and houses.

Information about all types of housing may be obtained from the Housing Division, 108 Illini Hall. Sorority and fraternity rushing may be discussed at the Office of the Dean of Women or Dean of Men.

OFFICE OF ADMISSIONS AND RECORDS

The functions of the Office of Admissions and Records include several which are of importance to you during your undergraduate years.

—It determines whether or not you are eligible for admission to the University.

- It lets you know if you have been granted a scholarship.
- It determines your residence classification (Page 9).
- With other agencies, it arranges orientation events of New Student Week.
- It supervises registration, including assessment of fees.
- It sends semester grade reports to you and your parents.
- It maintains your official academic records, and provides transcripts of these records when you request them.
- In the case of men students, it will keep the Selective Service Board informed of their status if so requested.
- Finally, the Office arranges for preparation and delivery of diplomas at graduation.

SECURITY OFFICE

The Office of Security is charged with enforcement of regulations governing student conduct. Members of the office staff are available for interviewing, interpretation of University regulations, and referral of students to other appropriate people for advice and aid.

The Security Office also issues the Student Identification (ID) Cards and administers the automobile and bicycle registration. It coordinates local and University law enforcement agencies in situations which involve the welfare of University students.

FINANCIAL AIDS

If you are in financial need, talk over your troubles with a member of the staffs of the Dean of Men or Dean of Women. They will be able to advise you about the various kinds of assistance that are available. They also will help you work out a sensible budget. You also may be able to meet your problems through one of the following:

SCHOLARSHIPS

The Scholarships Committee will accept applications from undergraduates with college averages of 3.75 or higher. Because scholarships are necessarily limited, they are awarded to the best qualified applicants. Some scholarships may have certain restrictions or specifications of their own. In general, nearly all of them require that you have:

- A superior record as a student.
- Evidence of financial need.

Since the University is state-supported, most scholarships are restricted to Illinois residents. The University does, however, have some scholarships for superior students from out-of-state.

Scholarship application forms may be obtained from the Director of Undergraduate Scholarship Programs, 105 Administration Building (E). In cases of those few scholarships available only to students enrolled in certain courses, blanks may be obtained from the respective college scholarship committees. However, the Director of Undergraduate Scholarship Programs will be able to advise you when this is true.

Students currently enrolled in the University may file scholarship applications at any time, provided they have made the required academic average. Applications for fall semester awards should be made as soon as possible after January 1, and applications for spring semester awards as soon as possible after October 1. Since most scholarships are awarded annually, very few funds are available for new awards starting with the second semester.

All cash scholarships are granted for a year at a time payable each semester; they may be renewed if the student maintains the necessary academic average and if funds are available.

LOANS

University Long-Term Loans are available to students who need financial aid. Ordinarily, loans are not made to students during their first year at the University.

Each loan application must be approved by the Dean of Men or Dean of Women, by the dean of your college, and by the Business Office. Application blanks may be obtained from the offices of the Bursar, Dean of Men, or Dean of Women.

A maximum of $2,500 (subject to availability of funds) may be loaned to a student over the entire period he attends the University.

You may repay loans over a four-year period; installments will begin four months after you leave school or after you cease to be enrolled as a full-time student.

The Business Office requires that you furnish security in the form of a qualified co-signer or collateral. A few exceptions are made where other arrangements have been laid down for a specified loan fund.

National Defense Education Act Loans may be made to qualified students under the National Defense Education Act (Title II of Public Law 85-864). To qualify, you must be a citizen of the United States or a person who is in the United States on permanent resident status. Borrowers must sign a loyalty oath and affidavit of allegiance to the United States.

In making these loans, preference is given to those who plan to teach in elementary or secondary schools, and to applicants who are or will major in science, mathematics, engineering, or a modern foreign language. In addition, you must show need for financial aid.

Prospective freshmen among the applicants must be in the top quarter of their high school classes; transfer students must have a 3.75 college average; and students who have been enrolled in the University must have a 3.5 average.

Loans are limited to $1,000 a year; the maximum which may be borrowed is $5,000. These loans carry three per cent interest, which begins one year after you cease to be a full-time student; repayment must be completed within 10 years. Postponement of repayment for up to three years, without interest, may be allowed if you go into the armed forces. If you go into teaching in the public schools on elementary or high school levels, as much as 50 per cent of the debt may be cancelled, at a rate of 10 per cent of principal and interest for each year of teaching up to a five-year limit.

If a borrower dies or becomes permanently disabled, the loan and interest may be cancelled. Application forms may be obtained from the Office of the Dean of Students, 152 Administration Building (W), where additional information about the national loans also is available.

At the time of this printing, several basic changes in provisions of the National Defense Loan Act are being considered. Therefore, it is advisable that an interested student, who at this time may not qualify, inquire whether the proposed changes affect his or her eligibility.

Short-Term Emergency Loans are available to students currently registered in the University. They vary from $5 to $100, and must be paid within 60 days or by the end of the semester in which they are made, whichever comes earlier. Applications are made through the Offices of the Dean of Men or Dean of Women.

PART-TIME JOBS

More than 45 per cent of all University of Illinois students earn part or all their way through college. Some of them do this through savings from summer jobs; others hold part-time jobs while they are students; some do both.

Students who need to work part-time while at the University should register at the Student Employment Office, 232 Illini Hall. The Office cannot guarantee you a job; however, there is no lack of opportunities. Hourly wages vary from $1.05 to $2.65, depending on the type of work and the skill and responsibility involved. Meal jobs usually require three hours of work a day; board-and-room jobs, four hours per day.

A freshman who works must, of course, budget his time more carefully than if he did not. A few work-scholarship awards are available for freshmen and other students of high academic achievement who otherwise might not be able to attend the University.

Information about summer job opportunities also is available through the Student Employment Office.

PROFESSIONAL JOB PLACEMENT

Every student's ultimate goal is work in a satisfying career. The University provides placement services that include a number of college and departmental placement offices, plus an overall Coordinating Placement Office which coordinates activities of the smaller offices, assists all-University placement programs, and aids students from academic fields not served by the specialized offices.

Many prospective employers send representatives to the campus each year to interview graduating seniors. If you are interested in taking part in such interviews, you should talk with the placement office in your college or department, or with the staff at the Coordinating Placement Office, 153 Administration (W).

You are urged to discuss career plans with one or more placement officers early in your college years, and to make full use of the psychological testing and vocational counseling available at the Student Counseling Service (Page 21). Early counseling and planning will help you make desirable adjustments in your course of studies and thereby equip you for your chosen career.

Individual placement officers and advisers are listed on Page 56.

Students looking for part-time work while in college, and those in search of summer jobs, should consult the Student Employment Office (see Page 55).

Short-Term Loans for interview purposes may be obtained from the Offices of the Dean of Men or the Dean of Women. Where the prospective firm or institution agrees to pay travel expenses, loans up to $250.00 may be requested. A student must bring the firm's letter or wire, in which reimbursement is guaranteed, to the respective offices where he or she fills out the short-term loan application. These loans are subject to the same regulations as short-term loans. Payment is required within the maximum of a sixty-day period or prior to the close of the semester in which the loan is granted.

TELEPHONE SERVICES

All University offices can be reached by calling EMpire 7-6611 and giving the switchboard operator the extension number desired.

Residents of Men's and Women's Residence Halls may be telephoned by dialing FL eetwood 2-6511 and giving the operator the desired extension. (The prefix letters, EM for Empire and FL for Fleetwood, are not used locally, but are used for long distance calls.)

Free local calls can be made from booths located in the Illini Union on the ground, first, and second floors. These free telephones can be identified by the extension number on the face of the dial and by absence of a coin-box. In using these telephones or other extension telephones in University offices to dial off campus numbers, you should dial "9"; wait for a new dial tone; and then dial the local number. When you call a University extension from one of the Illini Union phones or another University extension, you should dial the extension number directly.

LOST AND FOUND

A central Lost and Found Office is located on the balcony of Room 104 (the Billiard Room) of the Illini Union. If you lose an article, visit the Lost and Found Office to see if it has been returned. If it has not, fill out a "Lost Card." By keeping in contact with the Lost and Found office for two or three weeks, you stand a good chance of locating your lost belongings. It is a good idea to put name-tapes in clothing, and to mark all other belongings—especially books and notebooks—with your name.

PAYMENTS TO THE UNIVERSITY

TUITION AND FEES

Before registration is completed, you must pay tuition and fees in full or make formal arrangements to defer them or to pay them on the installment plan.

You may defer payment of tuition and fees only under special circumstances, and permission to do so is granted only by the Bursar's Office.

You may choose to pay your tuition and fees on the installment plan. This calls for four payments each semester, the first payable at registration, the remaining in each of the following months. Summer Session charges can be paid in two installments—half at registration and half during the following months. A $2 service charge is levied against students paying tuition and fees on the installment plan. Delinquent installment accounts are charged two per cent, but not less than $1. An installment is delinquent on the first day of the month following the date payment was due. Additional penalties may be imposed if you permit your accounts to become delinquent.

A Delinquent Notice of amount due will be mailed to the student about the 6th of the month. From this date, a grace period of ten days will be allowed to bring the account into a current condition. If this is not done, the college dean's offices will be instructed to deny the student admission to classes. If the student is unable to pay the amount past-due, he should call at the Bursar's Office upon receiving a Delinquent Notice and make other arrangements for payment acceptable to that office.

If a student gives the University a check which is returned with "non-sufficient funds" notation, he must redeem it within a reasonable length of time, or he is subject to dismissal from the University.

HOUSING COSTS

University residence hall charges (for single students) may be paid on the same installment plan as is used for installment payment of tuition and fees (see above).

Students living in fraternities, sororities, and independently owned and operated residences or rooming houses also usually pay room-and-board by the month instead of in a lump sum at the start of each term. Individual arrangements should be discussed with the treasurer or business manager or with the operator of private housing facilities.

STUDENT GOVERNMENT

As an undergraduate at the University of Illinois, you will take part in student government of many kinds and at many levels.

Your primary voice in student government is channeled through your housing group. This is true whether you live in a residence hall, a fraternity or sorority, a cooperative, or an independently owned student house. In any of these, you will help elect officers; will take part in weekly "house meetings;" will help set down group rules and plan the social events and will send representatives to housing councils that have a larger part in making policy and that, in turn, are represented on the Student Senate and other all-campus student agencies.

But this is not the end of your participation in student government. You may, of course, be elected to one of the housing councils or to the Senate; you may, through taking part in activities, become a campus leader and in this way play a part in the policy direction that is the major contribution of student government.

Even if you do none of these, you can elect to the Student Senate those fellow students you think will best represent your views in their discussions of policies affecting students' lives outside of classes.

HOUSING GROUP ORGANIZATIONS

The five housing group organizations at the University of Illinois are Panhellenic; Women's Group System; Men's Independent Association; Men's Residence Halls Association; and the Inter-fraternity Council. They are policy-making bodies on matters concerning their respective memberships; vote and express opinions on matters affecting the student body as a whole; and send ex-officio members to the Student Senate, and other all-campus bodies.

PANHELLENIC

As the governing and policy-making body for all sororities with chapters on this campus, Panhellenic encourages scholastic achievement, maintenance of high social standards, and participation in worthwhile activities.

The organization's executive committee coordinates activities on both junior and senior levels of Panhellenic and sits as a judicial board on matters of policy. It makes recommendations to the Panhellenic President's Council, which is the connecting link between individual sorority members and Panhellenic as a general legislative body.

Through Panhellenic representatives in Student Senate, Committee on Student Affairs, Coordination Committee, Panhel-WGS Coordinating Council, Illini Union Board, and Campus Chest Allocations Board, the sororities help determine larger campus policies.

Junior Panhellenic is made up of all sorority pledges. It is organized into four departments: pledge class presidents, pledge activities chairmen, pledge social chairmen, and pledge scholarship chairmen. An elected pledge chairman from each department serves on the Junior Panhellenic executive committee which coordinates departmental efforts and tries to help all pledges develop an awareness of their responsibilities as campus citizens and members of Panhellenic.

WOMEN'S GROUP SYSTEM

Purpose of the Women's Group System—popularly called by its initials, "WGS"—is to organize and unify the independent women at the University of Illinois. It encourages high scholarship, provides opportunities for leadership, promotes interest of its member groups and individuals in campus-wide events, serves the University, and helps independent women in their participation in the University's student political and social life.

The governing and policy-making body of WGS is called Second Council. It is made up of the presidents of all member houses plus additional representatives based on the numbers of women living in each house. Through Second Council, announcements are taken back to the individual houses. The Council members discuss and vote upon campus issues and upon recommendation from the WGS Executive Council.

The WGS Executive Council is composed of six elected officers, six selected major chairmen, the president of the WGS Freshman Board, the assistant social chairman, and a faculty adviser. This group advises WGS activities, makes general policies, and makes recommendations to Second Council on items of importance to independent women.

Freshman Board of WGS serves as a leadership training organization for independent freshman women. It helps sponsor WGS projects and functions, and helps independent freshman women adjust to college life.

WGS-Panhellenic Coordinating Committee. This important committee serves as an advisory liason between the two women's governing systems. It studies, evaluates, and makes recommendations in matters that would affect all undergraduate women. It also functions as the subcommittee on women's housing of the Committee on Student Affairs. Members of the committee are the presidents of Panhellenic and WGS, plus four representatives who petition for membership and are chosen annually for the coming year by the out-going committee.

INTERFRATERNITY COUNCIL

Interfraternity Council is the legislative and governing body of the 57 social fraternities with chapters on campus. Membership of the Council includes presidents and junior representatives from each fraternity.

Aims of the Interfraternity Council are to instill in fraternity members high regards for the traditions and standards of the University of Illinois, while providing for the general welfare and social, recreational, and scholastic activities of fraternity members.

The I-F Executive Committee, with the I-F President's Advisory Council, advises the association's president and helps coordinate fraternity affairs. The Board of Fraternity Affairs, composed of faculty, alumni, and Interfraternity Council officers, helps formulate basic policies for Interfraternity Council, with a view to seeing that every fraternity takes its proper place in the life of the campus. The Board of Fraternity Affairs also acts as a court of appeals from decisions of the I-F Judicial Committee. Other important committees of I-F work in areas of pledge training, scholarship, Greek Week activities, rushing, intramurals, and public relations.

Junior Interfraternity Council, made up of two representatives from each fraternity pledge class, provides training in future campus leadership for younger fraternity men. Junior I-F also makes recommendations to I-F Council and to individual fraternities regarding pledge training and rushing procedures.

MEN'S INDEPENDENT ASSOCIATION

Men's Independent Association (you will most often hear it called "M.I.A.") represents men students not affiliated with fraternities or University Residence Halls who live in organized independent dormitories or rooming houses. It is active in promoting scholarship, athletics, social events, and in providing opportunities for the independent man to have full participation in all phases of campus life.

Through M.I.A.'s governing and policy-making body, the Monday Council, representatives from each member house give the independent male student a voice on campus issues. The Council discusses and evaluates campus problems and formulates M.I.A.'s official position concerning them.

The M.I.A. Advisory Board acts in an advisory capacity to the Monday Council. Members of the Advisory Board are M.I.A. officers, faculty members, and the assistant dean of men for independent men.

MEN'S RESIDENCE HALLS ASSOCIATION

The Men's Residence Halls Association (M.R.H.A.) is made up of students living in the University's residence halls for men. Membership is automatic, in that "dues" for the Association are included in the housing contract for men living in University halls.

Newest of the five housing groups, M.R.H.A.'s governing body is its President's Council, composed of presidents of the member houses. Its aims are to foster plans and facilities for advancement of the group and its members scholastically, culturally, socially, and athletically. An M.R.H.A. Executive Council, made up of elected officers is a steering and policy-making board that plans and coordinates activities of the Association.

President of M.R.H.A. is elected by popular vote of the Halls' residents. He is assisted in his administrative duties by an internal vice president, an executive vice president, and a vice president for programs.

THE STUDENT SENATE

The Student Senate consists of no more than 65 undergraduate members, including 16 who are ex-officio, representing the housing groups, various all-campus boards and councils, and other senators elected from geographic "districts."

Basic purposes of the Student Senate are to promote the general welfare of the student body, to encourage responsible citizenship among students, and to serve as an agent of expression of student opinion on all matters which pertain to students.

The Student Senate also sponsors several service projects, among them a Travel Research Bureau, which studies and provides information and assistance on low-cost foreign travel opportunities available to students.

FRESHMAN SEMINAR

A number of freshman students are chosen each fall to take part in a Freshman Seminar. They are chosen on the basis of petitions to the student senate, followed by examinations and interviews. The Freshman Seminar conducts studies on local, national, and international problems as they affect students within the campus community. Freshmen participating in the Seminar sometimes are called upon to assist with Student Senate programs as well as to initiate projects of their own.

THE PRESIDENT'S PANEL

The President's Panel is a group of student leaders invited to meet from time to time with the President of the University for informal discussion of current topics and matters of special interest.

COMMITTEE ON STUDENT AFFAIRS

The Committee on Student Affairs is perhaps the most important organization governing policies that affect undergraduate students attending the University of Illinois at Urbana.

It is made up of nine faculty members elected by the University's Faculty Senate and a faculty chairman appointed by the President of the University, plus nine students elected by the Student Senate.

The Committee on Student Affairs (called "C.S.A.") acts in an advisory capacity to the Dean of Students, and recommends policies and actions concerning all student organizations, activities, social functions, and regulations. As a formal committee of the University Senate, C.S.A. is primarily charged with "establishing policies for the supervision and guidance of extra-curricular affairs and activities of undergraduate students, with particular attention to the maintenance of proper balance with, and primary emphasis on, academic affairs."

ACTIVITIES

You can enrich and expand your personal horizons by a wise use of the University's recreational and cultural opportunities.

The time you can spend in such a way will, of course, be limited by the hours you will need to spend in study and the classroom.

Even so, you probably will want to distribute your leisure time among several types of pursuits:

—Programs that cut across college and housing group lines to bring you into association with many kinds of your fellow students.

—Personal, cultural and hobby interests.

—Sports and other healthful recreation.

—Social life.

—Programs of your housing group.

—Interest in the campus church or foundation of your choice.

Activities can enable you to meet new friends, widen your interests, improve your personality, and develop your talents for leadership. However, do not become so deeply involved in activities that your school work or health may suffer—particularly during your freshman and sophomore years, when you are testing your capacities for academic success.

Information about activities is available through several sources in your housing group, principally your house activities chairman and your "Illini Guide."

In planning your participation in activities, particularly during your first two years in college, be sure to follow your own interests and talents; do not be pressured into "going along" with a friend into one of his interest groups, or to entering an activity because "the house needs someone" in this or that program.

You can get information about activities from the Dean of Men's or Dean of Women's Staffs, at house meetings, by reading the "Daily Illini," or by inquiring from one of the assistant directors at the Illini Union Student Activities office.

You can simply "join" certain activities. In others, you are asked to fill out a petition and, perhaps, to take part in an informal, friendly interview with students already engaged in that activity. If you are not chosen for the activity you first attempt, do not be discouraged. Try again. There are a myriad of opportunities in all kinds of activities on this campus, and you will find several in which you can be happy.

THE ILLINI UNION

The Illini Union is the center of many campus activities. Headquarters of Illini Union activities is Room 322, Illini Union. You may inquire there about opportunities and can fill out petitions for committee posts.

Among activities which Illini Union committees plan and coordinate are:

The International Fair, featuring foods, wares, and entertainment from foreign countries; Pep Rallies, held Friday evenings before home football games; Jazz-U-Like It, Thursday night jazz programs; Dad's Day, a weekend set aside to honor the fathers of students at the University; Block I, twin cheering sections at home football games; International Relations, aimed primarily at activities participation by foreign students; Illini Union Movies, selected motion pictures shown at nominal rates Fridays and Saturdays; Night Lights, student talent "floor shows" at Union dance parties; Homecoming a weekend of entertainment for returning alumni; Spring Musical, the all-student musical presented on campus Mother's Day weekend; Dances, weekly record hops, plus all-University dances such as those at Homecoming and at Registration periods; coffee Hours, planned to help you get acquainted with your fellow students; Mother's Day, a weekend honoring the mothers of University students; Stunt Show, traditional variety show presented at Homecoming; Social Education, a continuing series of panel discussions held at campus houses to help students develop acceptable social graces; Music Hours, programs of selected classical music; Fine Arts, art exhibits in the Union's ground floor galleries; Publicity, providing information about Union programs and projects.

THE PERFORMING ARTS

MUSIC

The University Bands provide opportunities for instrumentalists on several levels, from the Concert Band of the most highly trained and talented instrumental musicians to the Third Regimental Band for those with much less training. Membership in these Bands can be sought by all students. However, only men can apply for the Football Marching Band. Inquire about tryouts at the Band Building.

The University Symphony Orchestra, an organization of the top student instrumentalists, holds tryouts at the start of each semester of the regular school year. Inquire at the School of Music Office for the times when they will be held.

Students also may try out for membership in the University's famous choral groups. The "Singing Illini" Varsity Men's Glee Club, the Women's Glee Club, the University Chorus, the University Choir, and the Oratorio Society all hold tryouts twice a year, usually immediately after registration. Notices will be carried in The Daily Illini, or you can obtain information by calling the School of Music.

The University of Illinois Opera Group, composed primarily of voice majors in the School of Music, produces scenes from opera and the lyric theater, and occasionally puts on a complete opera. Sometimes it also joins with the University Theater to present a production.

THE UNIVERSITY THEATER

Students interested in dramatics—as performers, as production workers, or as both—can take part in activities of the University Theater. In addition to acting experience, students can gain experience in scenery construction, costuming, design, make-up, and such business staff assignments as publicity, box office work, house management, and play bill preparation. The University Theater gives a minimum of five plays during its annual subscription season.

The University Theater Workshop offers basic training for the regular University Theater production. It is open to all students, with special encouragement to freshmen and sophomores. The Workshop productions are directed by undergraduate and graduate student directors working under immediate faculty guidance.

In order to take part in the University Theater or its Workshop, you must take part in general tryouts offered at the beginning of each semester.

Playwriter's Workshop, as a part of the University Theater, presents new plays written by student authors.

ORCHESIS

Orchesis dance group is open to both men and women students interested in modern dance and choreography. It presents original dance recitals, sponsors visits of famous dance groups, and frequently takes part with other dramatic or musical campus groups in all-University presentations.

STAR COURSE

Star Course gives undergraduates an opportunity to work with managerial aspects of putting on concerts and other cultural events. Sponsored by the University Concert and Entertainment Board, the Star Course brings notable groups and artists to the campus for its annual subscription series of concerts by distinguished performers. Star Course "extras," outside the subscription series, bring in off-beat and lesser-known artists, as well as those performing in popular rather than classical fields. A listing of the Star Course series attractions for 1961-62 can be found on Page 59; Star Course "extras" are announced at fairly short notice before each such event. Students interested in taking part in Star Course management activities can apply, early in the school year, at the Star Course office, 328 Illini Union.

ALL-UNIVERSITY STUDENT PUBLICATIONS

The Daily Illini, student newspaper, is issued five days a week. Experience is offered in all fields of newspaper work—reporting, editing, advertising, and circulation. Interested students—particularly freshmen—may attend a meeting at the beginning of the semester, designed to acquaint them with the organization of various department. The Daily Illini office is in the basement of Illini Hall, and you can inquire there about opportunities to join the staff.

The Illio, University yearbook, gives a pictorial record of campus activities during the year. The editorial staff plans layouts, handles pictures, and writes and edits copy. The business staff manages finances, sales, and advertising. Both freshmen and more advanced students may apply for the Illio staff at the office, in the Illini Hall lobby.

RADIO AND TELEVISION

Opportunities for students to work in radio and television over the University's stations, WILL (AM and FM) and WILL-TV, Channel 12, are limited principally to those who are taking course work in these fields.

WPGU is a student radio station which provides experience in all phases of regular radio broadcasting, managing, engineering, and programming. Its programming includes new coverage, musical shows of every type, and special features such as basketball broadcasts and the Student Senate weekly shows.

You may get additional information about WPGU by stopping in at its new studios in the basement of Weston Hall.

CAMPUS CHEST

Campus Chest is a service and philanthropic organization formed to eliminate multiple drives for funds for various charities, and to replace them by a single annual drive. The charities supported are selected by the Campus Chest Allocations Board, which has representatives from Student Senate, the five housing group governing bodies, the Illini Union, the campus YMCA and YWCA, the faculty, and the Campus Chest itself. In addition to the annual fund solicitation, Campus Chest sponsors book and clothing drives.

The University YMCA and YWCA, although not officially connected with the University, provide the centers for many campus activities. Jointly and separately, they sponsor programs to promote the social, religious, and intellectual needs of students. They provide opportunities to know and work with students of different points of view, including those of other faiths and nations. For information about these activities opportunities, inquire at the YMCA or YWCA.

OTHER CAMPUS ORGANIZATIONS

In addition to the all-University groups discussed above, you will find many more specialized clubs and organizations within the range of your hobby or professional interests. A complete listing of student organizations would run into the hundreds. As you become acquainted with other students with interests similar to yours, you will find yourself drawn into these hobby groups. As you advance in scholarship, you may become eligible for the professional and scholarly groups within your college and major department. Watch The Daily Illini, look at bulletin boards, and talk to the advisers in your housing groups about any special interests that are not being fulfilled through a campus group; or go to the Dean of Men's or Dean of Women's Office and ask one of the assistant deans to consult a listing and see if there is a group interested in your particular hobby.

SPORTS

The University provides facilities and both formal and informal programs so that every student who wishes to do so can take part in competitive or recreational sports.

PHYSICAL EDUCATION

Most students (see Page 14) are required to take four semesters of physical education. During these, you may elect courses that offer instruction in team or individual sports. They are listed in the University's Undergraduate Bulletin and each semester's Time Table.

VARSITY COMPETITION

The University of Illinois is a member of the Intercollegiate Conference of Faculty Representatives, commonly called "the Western Conference" or "the Big Ten."

Only sophomores, juniors, and seniors can take part in intercollegiate competition, but freshman squads practice and prepare for future participation. More than 1,000 students each year take part in intercollegiate athletic programs. Over the years, Illinois has won more Big Ten team titles than any other member University.

Although 159 students attend the University on athletic grant-in-aid scholarships, others find their way into varsity competition through talents displayed on freshman teams or in physical education classes. A student is welcome to try out for any sport, and may receive details by inquiring at the Athletic Association office, or by interviewing the sport's head coach (see Page 59).

INTRAMURAL SPORTS

The University's intramural sports program, supported by the Athletic Association, offers competition and recreation for both teams and individuals.

The major programs are intramural competition; recreational sports; co-recreational sports; and faculty-staff sports.

Any student may participate in competitive programs through his house intramural representative, or by individual registration at the Intramural Office, 205 Huff Gym. Both team and individual winners receive trophies and medals.

Information about intramurals can be obtained from house representatives, but those interested also should watch University bulletin boards and the Daily Illini. Entries are accepted two weeks before competition begins.

COMPETITIVE INTRAMURAL SPORTS

Competitive intramural sports are open to all interested undergraduate men. Specific information on eligibility is available at the Intramural Office.

RECREATIONAL FACILITIES

Recreational facilities for students are available both at the University and in the surrounding facilities. Since so many people want to use University facilities, you sometimes must make advance arrangements for their use. Most arrangements can be made through the Intramural Office, 205 Huff Gym, Extension 2181, or through the Central Office on the Use of Space, 125-c Illini Union.

Most recreational facilities are open for non-class purposes in the late afternoons, evenings, and weekends. Specific times can be learned at the Intramural Office and are posted in the various gyms.

ILLINI UNION TEAM SPORTS

Some competitive team sports are not offered at the formal varsity level. These teams are organized by and compete through schedules arranged by the Illini Union. If you are interested, ask about them at Room 322 Illini Union. Sports included are:

- Soccer
- Bowling
- Hockey
- Beginning Bridge, First Semester
- Intermediate Bridge, Second Semester

ATHLETIC ACTIVITY CARDS (AA CARDS)

Members of the student body, faculty and staff interested in seeing varsity games can save money by buying AA Cards. The $14.00 paid for this card entitles the holder to attend all football games at least three basketball games (limited because of seating capacity of Huff Gymnasium), and all other varsity events. AA Cards are available at the Athletic Association Ticket Office, Illini Hall. A married student or faculty member is allowed to buy an additional AA Card for his or her wife or husband.

YOUR FELLOW STUDENTS

If you are the usual University of Illinois undergraduate, you have come from a family that lives in the state of Illinois. In fact, 87 per cent of you are Illinois residents.

But in the student body there also are some students with backgrounds or in circumstances most of you do not share. These include students from other countries, those from the other 49 states of this nation, married students, and students with physical handicaps.

INTERNATIONAL STUDENTS

The history of students crossing national borders to get educations dates back at least to the days of the Roman Republic, when it was fairly common for young scholars to journey to Athens and Rhodes to study under the famous Greek teachers. The idea of study in other nations has continued to grow to the present.

International students are not a novelty at Illinois. The first two students from other lands came to Urbana in 1870—one from Armenia and one from Germany. Recognizing that foreign students have special counseling needs, the University in 1909—with 50 international students in residence—became one of the first to have a special faculty adviser for foreign students. Although his basic function of giving counsel to students from other countries remains the same, this faculty member now has the title of Director, The Office of Foreign Student Affairs.

The United States as a whole now has more than 50,000 international students distributed among its colleges and universities.

The presence of international students at a college is of great value in broadening the educational experiences of all the students. Thus, the University of Illinois takes pride in its large student population from countries outside the United States. For many years, Illinois has ranked sixth among all colleges and universities in the nation which foreign students attend. In 1960-61, more than 1,000 students from some 80 foreign countries were enrolled on the Urbana campus. The largest numbers came from India, Nationalist China, Canada, and Colombia, in that order.

About 75 per cent of the foreign students at the University of Illinois are in graduate studies. Technical and scientific fields attract the greatest numbers; almost 50 per cent are specializing in engineering, and following that come the social sciences and humanities, the physical and natural sciences, and commerce and agriculture. Among the foreign students enrolled, men outnumber women by nine to one.

The Office of Foreign Student Affairs begins its work with the international student before he leaves his homeland, continues it through his University career, and frequently continues its interest after he has completed his studies and returned home. Among its services to international students are: legal advice (immigration and other federal regulations); financial aid; alien income tax matters; insurance problems; housing placement; and advice on personal problems. It provides general orientation to the University and community, and directs a number of activities designed to lessen the "cultural shock" so often felt by students on arrival in a strange land. The Office helps both students and the University by acting as liason regarding foreign students with U. S. and foreign governments, and with agencies engaged in educational exchange. It works with student and community groups to make foreign students available as speakers and guests.

With few exceptions, the foreign students at the University of Illinois are a highly select group who have survived rigid screening. They are among us because they have been judged to have superior potential for learning and leadership.

Although the vast majority of them are responsible and mature persons with bright futures, many will experience trying times here as they adjust to strange living conditions and a completely new educational system, unusual food, unfamiliar social customs, and frighteningly high costs. Fortunately, American students can do much to make the stay of these fellow students from abroad more enjoyable by taking a friendly interest in them.

Illinois' large foreign student population offers unparalleled opportunities to its American students—to be of service, to acquire new friends, to broaden perspectives, to learn about other countries and cultures, and to improve understanding among the peoples of the world. A truly international education is available right here in Urbana.

PHYSICALLY DISABLED STUDENTS

The University of Illinois pioneered in making facilities and services available so that physically disabled young people could obtain college educations on the same basis as other students.

Ramps into buildings and elevators make it easier for them to move around campus; all new buildings, including housing, are designed with the disabled in mind; four elevator-equipped buses make the campus rounds on regular schedules; physical therapy and special counseling are provided.

The physically disabled students take a full share of campus life and render many services. They have their own service fraternity, Delta Sigma Omicron. The Illinois Gizz Kids Wheelchair Basketball Team is world famous, and many national and world records in wheelchair track, field and archery are held by University of Illinois disabled students. They participate in wheel-chair football, baseball, square dancing and other sports, and take part in radio, television, student publications and government, fraternities, and sororities, and other activities.

The center of all these activities, plus physical therapy for the disabled, is located in the Division of Rehabilitation-Education Services, Rehabilitation Center.

Enrollment of physically disabled students at the University of Illinois is limited by the facilities available. 1960-61 enrollment of the disabled was 163, including 101 in wheelchairs.

In meeting and becoming friends with physically disabled students, other undergraduates should recognize that their social desires, their aspirations, and their needs are just the same as yours.

Generally, they can do about anything you can do, although they may have to do it a little differently. For example, they may wheel instead of walk. Just as you are different from your room-mate or your next door neighbor, so are the physically disabled different from each other. They are individuals; do not think of them or treat them as a group. All people need help from time to time, and the disabled are no exception, but such help must be constructive and realistic, not aggressive or soliticious.

The academic records of physically disabled students at the University of Illinois can be looked on with pride by all Illini. To date, 221 disabled students have received degrees in 40 fields, and all are successfully engaged in work in their chosen profession. Many have received advanced degrees, and many have had high scholastic marks. The co-salutatorian of the February, 1959, graduating class was a co-ed in a wheelchair.

MARRIED STUDENTS

The University recognizes that married students sometimes need services that single undergraduate students do not need. They are invited to bring their problems to the offices of the Dean of Men and Dean of Women, to the Counseling Service, and to other counseling agencies throughout the campus.

HOUSING

Questions regarding housing for married students and their families should be directed to Family Housing Office, Housing Division, 227 Illini Hall. A limited amount of University housing for married students is available. The Housing Division, 108 Illini Hall, also maintains lists of rental houses and apartments in the Urbana-Champaign community.

COUNSELING

The Student Counseling Service, as part of its program of personal and psychological counseling (see Page 21), offers assistance to those with problems arising from pre-marital and marital adjustment. Counseling is available without charge to all undergraduates. Appointments should be made through the Reception Office, 311 Administration (E), Ext. 2210.

The Mental Hygiene Unit of the University Health Service (see Page 21), has highly trained staff in psychiatric and psychological fields available to assist with marriage counseling. The Unit considers it desirable to counsel with both marriage partners, even though only one may be a student or seek help. Psychiatric social workers in the Unit assist with family problems, and help students get in touch with specialized agencies of the community or in their home towns. Appointments at the Mental Health Unit may be made by calling Ext. 3840.

Students frequently want to consult their ministers, priests, or rabbis for pre-marital or marital counseling. See Page 57 for listing of campus religious foundations.

BABY-SITTING

The Student Employment office, Ext. 544, or individual residence halls or student rooming houses may be able to give limited assistance in providing baby-sitters, provided they have enough advance notice. Those hiring baby-sitters are reminded that undergraduate women must return to their houses or halls by closing hours (see Page 46), and may not stay over night in private homes.

OTHER PROBLEMS

Married students looking for solutions to other common problems may want to consult the sections of this booklet on Student Employment (Page 25); Financial Aids (Page 23); Loans (Page 24); Health and Medical Insurance (Page 21); and Motor Vehicle (Page 47).

REGULATIONS APPLYING TO UNDERGRADUATE AFFAIRS

YOUR SOCIAL LIFE

Much of your social life will be found in your housing group. Another part of it may come into being through friends you meet in classes or in your activity, hobby, or religious groups. Many campus activities organizations, particularly those with hobby or career interest, have their own social programs.

Aid in planning house and organization social events and approval of them are under supervision of the Dean of Women's Office. The assistant dean for social events, 102-A English Building, furnishes information on regulations, sponsors (chaperons), and places for social functions. She also aids in social education programs for house and organization members. Much of her work is with social chairmen, but she also is happy to consult with other students.

The social chairman and president of each house or organization are personally responsible for standards and conduct of social events. These responsibilities include: hospitable treatment of chaperons, insistence upon adequate lighting, restriction of events to appropriate areas of the house, prevention of the use of intoxicating liquor, responsibility for conduct of everyone attending, observance of fire and safety precautions, and closing on time.

It is important to plan the house or organization social calendar for the year early in the fall semester. Social events may not be scheduled on Homecoming, Dad's Day, or Mother's Day weekends; during final examinations; or between semesters. Except for picnics, hayrides, and roller-skating, social events may not be held outside the Champaign-Urbana city limits. New lists of places within the city approved for social events are available each semester.

DANCES

A house may hold a limit of five dances per semester, of which only one may be formal. Others may be as informal as record dances.

OTHER SOCIAL EVENTS

Houses frequently like to hold exchange-dinners, desserts, or coke exchanges as group events, to get their members better acquainted with other students. Picnics, hayrides, splash parties, "at homes," caroling, serenading, and roller-skating are other possibilities for social events.

PETITIONING

You must petition, and have the petition approved, before you can hold a social event. Petitions may be obtained at the Office of the Dean of Women.

CHAPERONS

Student social events are sponsored (chaperoned) by a married couple from the faculty. However, housing group events other than dances, picnics, hayrides, and roller-skating may be sponsored by approved house directors. Organization events of hobby, professional, and activities groups usually are sponsored by faculty members sharing those fields of interest. Files of names of faculty sponsors are available in the Dean of Women's office. Lists of temporary house directors also are on file; these women, approved by the University, are available by arrangement to serve during informal events in houses not employing full-time house directors, and are paid for their services.

REPORTS

Following each social event, an evaluation report must be filed at the Dean of Women's office by the social chairman and the faculty sponsors.

CLOTHES SENSE

The smart student—smart in both the sense of being wise and in the sense of being well-dressed—usually follows Lord Chesterfield's famous advice on clothes sense:

"Take care always to be dressed like the reasonable people of your own age, in the place where you are; whose dress is never spoken of one way or another, as either too negligent or too much studied."

Learning to wear the right clothes at the right time is a part of your education. In general, casualness is the basis of most campus styles, but you should remember that being "casual" does not mean being sloppy or dressing in poor taste. You will be more self-confident and have a better time when you are dressed appropriately.

The following chart will help you select the right clothes for most campus occasions.

Occasion	Women's Dress	Men's Dress
New Student Week	Class clothes, cottons or skirt and sweater, depending on weather, flats, (saddles, sneakers, loafers)	Sport shirts, slacks, sweaters, or sport coat and slacks
Classes	Skirts and sweaters or blouses, casual dresses, suits, jumpers, blazers, flats (saddles, sneakers, loafers)	Sport shirts and slacks, sweaters. Sport coats and dress slacks always acceptable.
Football games Band concerts "Coke dates" Coffee hours Record dances Friday night shows	More class wear. Dress warmly for late fall games. Flats with hose or sport shoes and socks.	Class wear with an emphasis on sport coat and tie for "date" affairs
Hay rides Picnics	Dress comfortably	Dress comfortably
Sunday night supper club Friday night mixers *Saturday and Sunday night shows *Exchange dinners	Casual dresses, skirts and blouses or sweaters, suits, heels or flats	Suits, sport coats and slacks
Registration dances Saturday night hops Night Lights Star Course University Theatre Sunday church services Open house teas	Date dress, basic wool dress, dressy suits, heels, a hat (only for church and house teas)	Suits, sport coats and slacks
Formal Some house dances Some special dinners	Formals or "cocktail" dresses, as you please, heels	Tuxedos

REGULATIONS APPLYING TO UNDERGRADUATE ORGANIZATIONS

Recognized undergraduate organizations at the University of Illinois must conform to certain regulations. All members of these organizations and activities should be familiar with the general rules; when in doubt or need of advice, members and officers of student groups should consult the staff of the Office of Student Organizations and Activities, 329 Illini Union.

General regulations include the following:

1. Except for housing groups, no meetings may be scheduled 6-8 p.m. Mondays.
2. Meetings held by non-house-maintaining groups must close by 10 p.m. Sundays-Thursdays, and 12 p.m. Fridays-Saturdays. On Sundays, meetings other than those of a religious nature are discouraged and require special approval.
3. Mixed groups may not meet in student residences except by approval from the Dean of Women's office, 100 English Building.
4. If you plan to have an outside speaker—that is, someone who is not a member of the student body or the faculty of this University—you must get advance approval at 329 Illini Union.
5. Informal initiations held by organizations except housing groups must be approved two weeks in advance at 329 Illini Union. Each of them must be attended by the organization's president and its faculty adviser. Fraternity and sorority initiations are regulated by Interfraternity Council and Panhellenic.
6. All student organizations must petition for and receive advance permission to hold social functions (see Page 40 and chart on Page 42). Questions regarding them should be taken to 100 English Building.
7. Beer, wine, or liquor is forbidden at any organization function.
8. General University social functions (those open to others as well as to members and guests) and special events such as conventions, demonstrations, money-raising projects, shows, recitals, sales, or queen contests must be approved and all details cleared through 329 Illini Union before any plans or commitments are made, and before any publicity is issued.
9. Requests for the use of University space must be submitted to the Reservations Office, 125 Illini Union.
10. Except for housing groups, all funds of undergraduate organizations must be handled through the organizations' individual accounts in the Student Organization's Fund.
11. Newly formed organizations may get information at 329 Illini Union on correct procedures to follow to obtain University recognition.

ADDITIONAL RULES AND REGULATIONS

Rules and standards governing aspects of your life as University of Illinois students are scattered throughout this booklet. The sections on housing, social life, academic life, and activities are only a few that include some of these rules. Thus, in seeking the rule that governs a specific case, you will be wise to consult the appropriate heading in this booklet.

Some additional miscellaneous rules are grouped together here. If you have questions about any rules affecting your academic career, consult your college office. If you have questions on rules governing your out-of-class life, go to the office of the Dean of Men or Dean of Women.

PERSONAL CONDUCT

When you become an Illini, you are an active member of the University community, entitled to its rights and privileges provided you assume your share of responsibilities.

The University demands high standards of personal conduct from its students. Higher education is a privilege; it is not your right. The nation, the state, and the University cannot afford to spend energy and money on those whose behavior or academic work do not meet accepted standards.

As a University student, it is your responsibility to respect and abide by University regulations as well as the laws of the community, the state, and the nation.

DISCIPLINE

Students whose conduct violates University rules or accepted standards may be subject to disciplinary action by appropriate University agencies. In extreme circumstances, their cases may be taken to the Sub-Committee on Student Discipline, of which the Security Officer (Page 23) is secretary.

Although a student who gets into trouble will be given all possible help and understanding, those whose standards and purposes seem completely at odds with those of the University may be put on probation or dismissed.

MASS DEMONSTRATIONS

One of the most unpleasant occurrences in higher education and at the University of Illinois in recent years has been that of mass demonstrations, water fights, or various mob displays which may be set in motion by unthinking and undisciplined students. These activities are not condoned. Each Illini parent and student should understand this. These escapades give the public a distorted view of university life, obliterating many excellent and worthwhile activities.

Students, men or women, found to be participants in such mass demonstrations will be asked to leave the University, thereby seriously jeopardizing their academic careers.

DRINKING

Illinois law prohibits possession, purchase, or drinking of beer, wine, or liquor by young people under the age of 21.

In addition, state law forbids transportation or possession of any alcoholic beverage in or about a motor vehicle except in the original package and with the seal unbroken.

A University regulation forbids possession or use of intoxicating beverages in any form in or about University property, in places where students live, and at student organization meetings or social events.

Your responsibility as a student is to observe state and University regulations. Even though you may be of legal age to buy and drink liquor, moderation is strongly advised. The University may dismiss any student whose conduct is undesirable or prejudicial to the University community's best interests. Undesirable and prejudicial conduct includes intoxication.

A student of legal age who buys liquor for a younger student makes himself liable to the charge of contributing to the delinquency of a minor.

SPECIAL REGULATIONS FOR WOMEN

Undergraduate women at the University of Illinois must obey special rules set up to protect their health and welfare. These affect such things as hours, travel off-campus, and work.

HOURS

The University has established closing hours for women. They must be in their own halls or houses by 10:30 p.m. on week nights, 1:00 a.m. on Friday and Saturday nights, and 11:00 p.m. on Sunday nights. Some exceptions are made during Registration and Final Weeks, and on special occasions.

Men callers may be received at houses where undergraduate women live only after 4:00 p.m., except on Saturdays and Sundays, when they may call after 12:00 noon. Undergraduate women may not visit men's living quarters without an approved chaperon.

CALLERS

Men's houses may entertain women guests informally when an approved chaperon is present, Tuesday and Thursday 4-7:30 p.m., Wednesday 4-10:00 p.m., Friday 4 p.m.-12:40 a.m., Saturday noon to 12:40 a.m., Sunday noon to 7:30 p.m.

TRAVEL SCHEDULES

An undergraduate woman's travel schedule should be arranged so that she leaves campus and returns before the closing hours in student houses for women. In unusual cases, her house director or head resident may give her special permission for other arrangements, or may refer the request to the Dean of Women's office.

OVERNIGHT TRIPS

Freshman women must have a letter or permission from a parent or guardian if they plan to leave the campus on an overnight trip. Upperclassmen may submit a general parental permission for the entire year.

When a woman student leaves the campus, she must sign out of her student residence, giving information on her destination, method of transportation, hostess, and expected hour and date of return. This is both a courtesy to her house director or counselor, and is a service to the student in case it would be necessary to reach her because an emergency had arisen.

FIELD TRIPS

A woman student need not get special permission to take a field trip held in connection with class work or approved extra-curricular activities. Such permissions are granted by the Dean of Women for the entire group.

WORKING LATE

With the exception of freshmen and those students on academic probation, women students may get limited permission for late work. Those who qualify may be allowed to return to their residences as late as 11:15 p.m. on Sunday and one other night of their choice, provided details are cleared with the Office of the Dean of Women.

SUNBATHING

Sunbathing is acceptable on a beach or at a resort; in public view on a University campus it is not.

Sunbathing areas, sheltered from public view, have been provided near or about student residential areas. Students should check with head residents, house directors, counselors, or Illini Guides to learn which area is most conveniently located for them.

Even in these sunbathing areas, unduly skimpy or otherwise immodest costumes are not permitted. Standards of good conduct and decency in dress should be observed, and appropriate dress should be worn to and from the areas.

Places reserved for sunbathing will soon become unsightly and unpleasant for everyone if they are littered with magazines, paper, other refuse, and soft drink bottles. You are urged to leave sunbathing areas free of refuse, and take all personal belongings home with you.

"Off-limit" areas to sunbathers are those bounded by Springfield Avenue on the north, Taft Drive on the south, Mathews Street on the east, and Wright Street on the west.

VEHICLE REGISTRATION

MOTOR VEHICLES

Freshmen under 21 years old, and students on academic probation, are prohibited from keeping cars or driving them while under jurisdiction of the University.

Undergraduates who are eligible to have or drive automobiles, regardless of their age, must register them at the Automobile and Traffic Division, Service Annex Building, 101 N. Mathews St. You will be charged a registration fee of $7.50 per semester.

The University restricts the use of motor vehicles by all undergraduates at Champaign-Urbana. Its rules regarding use and storage of student-owned automobiles are rigidly enforced, and infractions make a student subject to University discipline. A copy of these rules can be obtained from the Motor Vehicle Division, 103 Service Annex. Copies also are distributed at registration.

BICYCLES

Bicycles owned by students and faculty must be registered at Motor Vehicle Division, but no fee is charged. Regulations for bicycle riders are distributed at registration. Copies of them also may be obtained from the Motor Vehicle Division, and questions on bicycle registration and regulations will be answered there.

TRADITIONS

Students come and go; traditions grow and remain, weaving a thread of continuity between one generation of students and the next.

At the University of Illinois, now drawing within a few years of its hundredth birthday, we can count many traditions. An important group stems from your University's basic and continuing emphasis on high scholarly achievement. Close to student—and alumni—hearts are traditions whose roots lie in student life and out-of-class activities.

As time turns, some once-flourishing traditions wither and are discarded. No longer, for example, do freshmen wear the green "spots" or "dinks" on their heads wherever they go. No longer are class tugs-of-war held at stated occasions, with the objective for the winners to pull the losers into the Boneyard.

YOU ARE AN ILLINI

Many University of Illinois traditions have associations with the original inhabitants of the state, the Illinois Indians. Students and alumni are called "Illini" (pronounced "I-lie-nigh"), which has been translated as "brave men."

Thus, we call the University football team the "Fighting Illini," the football band, the "Marching Illini," and the Varsity Men's Glee Club, the "Singing Illini." Alumni throughout the nation form Illini Clubs; you will even find a few "Illinae" clubs composed of women only.

Some honoraries and student events bear Indian names. Activity honoraries for men, for example, are "Tomahawk" (sophomores); "Sachem" (juniors); and "Mawanda" (seniors).

Colors of the University of Illinois are orange and blue. Its motto is "Learning and Labor," a concept brought into artistic being in Lorado Taft's "Alma Mater" statue, near the Auditorium. The central figure, Alma Mater, stretches her arms to the figures representing Labor and Learning.

You will frequently see the University monogram, a U superimposed with an I, on University publications, decorations, and the like.

Many official documents bear the University seal.

During this year of the centennial of the Land-Grant movement, you also may see frequent use for many University purposes of the official Land-Grant symbol, thus tying in the University of Illinois with this exciting moment in educational history.

Living symbol of student life is Chief Illiniwek, a student who appears in authentic Indian garb and performs authentic Indian steps in the Stadium with the Football Band, at pep rallies and on other occasions. The Chief Illiniwek tradition stretches back to 1926. A painting in the University YMCA shows the first Chief Illiniwek in his ceremonial costume. In 1944, during World War II when most men students were in service, the Chief Illiniwek was a co-ed.

FOUNDER'S DAY

Each March 2, in a program planned to commemorate founding of the University in 1868, representatives of student organizations and the University administration place a wreath on the grave of the first Regent of the University, John Milton Gregory, who is buried on the campus between Altgeld Hall and the Administration Building. Regent Gregory's headstone bears the inscription, If you would seek his monument, look about you.

HONORS DAY

An Honors Day convocation is held early in May (customarily on the Friday afternoon of the campus Mother's Day weekend), in which the University of Illinois gives public recognition to those students of outstanding academic achievement.

FESTIVAL OF CONTEMPORARY ARTS

This internationally acclaimed cultural festival is sponsored by the College of Fine and Applied Arts, but faculty, students, and campus groups from many other parts of the University become involved in its presentations.

The first Festival was in 1948; it has been held biennially since 1953; next Festival—the 11th—will be held in 1962-1963.

Each Festival spans a six-week period in the early spring. In addition to national exhibitions of current work in art, architecture, city planning, landscape architecture, photography, printing, and crafts, special events are held in music, dance, cinema, and the theater.

THE BROADWALK

In earlier days of the University, the wide walk through the Quadrangle was called "the Boardwalk"; when boards were replaced with cement, the popular name became "the Broadwalk." Official name is Burrill Avenue.

THE ALTGELD CHIMES

The chimes in the tower of Altgeld Hall, which ring the quarter hours, can be heard throughout campus. Chimes concerts are played on the carillon on Founder's Day, in the days just before the Christmas holiday, and occasionally during the week and at noon on Sundays. The chimes were the gift of the classes of 1910 through 1920.

HOMECOMING . . . DAD'S DAY . . . MOTHER'S DAY

Three popular observances which have spread to campuses around the world had their origins at the University of Illinois.

Homecoming weekend brings alumni flocking back to the campus. At the Homecoming football game in Memorial Stadium taps are played for those alumni who gave their lives for their country. The Stadium itself was built with donated funds to honor those Illini killed in World War I. On a more festive note, independent and Greek letter houses vie for prizes for the best decorations; a Stunt Show and a University Theater production are offered; special dances are held, and "Miss Illinois" is crowned queen of the campus.

Dad's Day weekend began at the University of Illinois in 1920. With "King Dad" chosen by lot as symbol of all the visiting fathers, the activities include a football game, a swim show, and beauty pageant, a Dad's Day Revue (variety show), a University Theater production, a Glee Club concert, and other entertainment events.

An important part of the weekend is the annual Saturday morning meeting of the Dad's Association, first organization of its kind when it was organized in 1922. All fathers or male guardians of undergraduate students at Urbana automatically are members; contributing members pay nominal annual dues. The Dad's Association provides 10 scholarship for students, aids in financing color movies on student life, annually sponsors statewide meetings for prospective new students and parents, publishes the monthly "Dad's Illini," and in 1961 held an on-campus series of orientation meetings for students' parents.

Mother's Day weekend began at the University of Illinois in 1921, is held each year the week before the National Mother's Day. Highlights of the weekend are Honors Day, the Spring Musical, Military Honors Day (formal ROTC review), a theater production, a Glee Club concert, and the processional and crowning of the May Queen.

On Saturday morning of their weekend, the visitors attend the annual meeting of the Mother's Association. Organized in 1923, and first of its kind, the Mother's Association sponsors four scholarships, joins the Dad's Association in sponsoring statewide meetings for prospective students, and their parents and carries on other projects benefiting the student body. All mothers and women guardians of University students at Urbana automatically are members; contributing members pay a nominal annual fee to support the Association's activities.

UNIVERSITY SONGS

All Illini stand and men remove their hats when "Illinois Loyalty" is played. Illini always rise for the loyalty song of a visiting school.

Perhaps the most popular among Illinois songs is the melodic Hail to the Orange; a traditional pep song is Oskee-Wow-Wow; and the stirring Pride of the Illini hails the entrance of Chief Illiniwek.

Words to these songs are given on back cover.

BLOCK I

Two student cheering sections perform during half-time at home football games. One group is located in the East Stand, the other in the West Balcony of Memorial Stadium. By flashing colored cards, on signal, they form patterns, pictures, and scenes for the enjoyment of the football crowd.

ILLIBUCK

The original Illibuck was a live turtle; now deceased, he has been succeeded by a wooden replica of the original. Illibuck is given each year, in half-time ceremonies, to the school that won the previous year's Illinois-Ohio State football game. Custodians are Sachem (at Illinois) and Bucket and Dipper (at Ohio State), junior men's activities honoraries.

PEP RALLIES

Pep rallies are held each Friday night before a home football game.

DANCES

Although the dances of most interest to you may be the ones planned and held in houses and halls, traditional campus "big dances" also are starred on many students' social calendars.

In the fall, these include the Fall Registration Dance and the Homecoming Dance, both sponsored by the Illini Union; the Men's Residence Halls Association (MRHA) Ball, and the Men's Independent Association-Women's Group System (MIA-WGS) Ball, sponsored by these housing groups.

Spring dances are St. Pat's Ball, held each March to climax Engineering Open House; Greek Ball, sponsored by Panhellenic and Interfraternity Councils; the Plowboy Prom, given by agriculture students to climax the Farm and Home Festival; and the Union's Spring Registration Dance.

MERC WEEK

MERC Week, "Men's Economic Recovery Week," is one week out of the year when University of Illinois women do the asking, planning, and paying for dates. In a turn-about of the usual courtesies, the girls light the men's cigarettes, open doors, and escort them home at the end of the evening.

TWILIGHT BAND CONCERTS

Twilight Band concerts have been a delight for students, faculty, and the community at large since 1900. The concerts by various units of the University

Bands are held on the steps of the Auditorium; the audience sits on the grass of the Quadrangle. The concerts begin in late April and continue through the Summer Session.

GREEK WEEK

Social fraternities and sororities with chapters at Urbana set aside one week of the year for activities aimed at strengthening their friendships and relationships with other campus housing organizations, with the faculty, and with alumni. Open houses, exchange dinners, and similar programs are held.

A TRUE ILLINI NEVER CUTS . . .

Classes or across the grass. The double impact of this slogan reminds Illini not to mar the beauty of the campus by making footpaths across the lawn, and also that "cutting classes" may make you an ex-Illini.

SERENADES

Serenades at sorority houses, residence halls, and women's independent houses are popular during the spring and fall. Men's groups planning such serenades must, as is outlined in the "rules" section, get prior permission.

RECENT "TRADITIONS"

Customs that are too new to be called traditions, but may achieve that title if they survive the tests of time include the "Ugly Man Contest;" the pre-Thanksgiving "Turkey Chase;" a spring "Bicycle Derby;" and autumn pajama races in the fraternity and men's independent housing district.

LANDMARKS

Closely in key with the University's traditions are its landmarks.

The Lincoln Plaque, on the wall of the first floor lobby of Lincoln Hall, is a bronze tablet bearing the words of the Gettysburg Address.

The Hall of Fame honoring distinguished Illinois Editors, is located in Gregory Hall. You can see the bronze marker in the first floor corridor.

The Senior Bench, gift of the class of 1900, is located between Altgeld Hall and the Illini Union. Some years ago, the bench actually was reserved for seniors; today, this custom has vanished and the bench welcomes anyone who chooses to use it.

The Krannert Museum, gift of alumni, is a show-place setting for exhibits of works in the fine arts. Others of interest to the general public as well as to students and faculty are permanent exhibits in the Natural History Museum, Natural History Building, and Classical and European Culture Museum, Lincoln Hall; and rotating exhibits in the first floor corridors of the Library and the ground floor of the Illini Union.

Allerton House and the Hott Memorial Center. A few miles from the main campus are Allerton House, 23 miles from Urbana near Monticello, and the Hott Memorial, in Monticello itself. These are used as an off-campus conference center by the Division of University Extension, and when not booked for these purposes can be reserved through the Division for other educational meetings. Allerton House parks and gardens, studded with statuary, are open to the public. It was an endowed gift from Robert Allerton. Picnic grounds are available. The Hott Memorial Center, a magnificent mansion, is a recent gift from Mr. and Mrs. Maxwell R. Hott.

ILLINI "FIRSTS"

Be an informed Illini. There is much to be proud of at the University of Illinois. Your University's "Famous Firsts" are one of many parts of the University tradition to which you can look with pride. Below are listed only a few major contributions:

- 1868 The first school of architecture in the United States.
- 1869 Started the first laboratories for students.
- 1870 Country's first shop for engineering education.
- 1876 The Morrow Plots—oldest soil experimental plots in the United States and second in the world—located directly behind Smith Music Hall.
- 1877 World's first course in bacteriology.
- 1881 Professor T. J. Burrill—first evidence that bacteria causes diseases in plants (discovered before Pasteur realized it in humans).
- 1890 World's first course for architectural engineers.
- 1896 First statewide study of water-borne epidemics.
- 1897 First state-supported School of Music in the United States.
- 1901 First University in the world to have a Dean of Men, Thomas Arkle Clark.
- 1902 First college-level courses in Business English.
- 1902 Country's first collegiate cheerleader, R. C. Mathews.
- 1903 Nation's first Engineering Experiment Station.
- 1906 World's first church expressly for college students, McKinley Presbyterian Church.
- 1907 First legislative grant specifically for graduate study made by a state.
- 1908 Country's first full-time research worker in Home Economics.
- 1910 First Homecoming.
- 1912 First professor of city planning.
- 1913 Professor Jakob Kunz made first modern, sensitive photoelectric cell.
- 1913 World's first campus church foundation—Wesley Foundation.
- 1914 World's first short course in highway engineering.
- 1917 First indoor intercollegiate relay carnival.
- 1919 First 4-year athletic coaching program.
- 1920 First Dad's Day.
- 1921 First campus Mother's Day.
- 1922 First sound-on-film motion pictures.
- 1924 World's first house especially for home heating research.
- 1925 First short course for firemen.
- 1948 World's first Bureau of Business Management.
- 1948 First comprehensive college program for the severely disabled.
- 1949 First betatron entirely for medical use.
- 1950 World's largest betatron or "atom-smasher."
- 1950 College of Dentistry invented the first formula for ammoniated dentrifice.
- 1954 A group led by Dr. Warren H. Cole, College of Medicine, demonstrated that cancer cells sometimes slough off into the bloodstreams as a tumor is being removed through surgery, lodge elsewhere in the body, and reproduce tumors. They have developed a widely-used technique for preventing such spread.
- 1959 The Aeromedical Laboratory, Chicago Professional Colleges, played a key role in experiments which resulted in recovery of two live monkeys from the nose cone of a Jupiter C missile. Dr. John Marbarger calculated the amount of oxygen needed to keep the monkeys alive in the sealed capsule during flight.

Student Churches, Religious Foundations

Near the campus are churches of all faiths, many of which have established foundations for student activities. Recognizing the spiritual needs of students away from home, the foundations have extensive programs of religious, social, and service activities.

The first church for college students was organized near the University of Illinois campus in 1906, and the campus religious foundation idea was born here in 1913. Both of these ideas have now spread to college communities everywhere.

Although intended primarily to serve their denominational members, the religious foundations extend a welcome to all students to join and participate in programs rewarding to the individual and the community.
